Moderna gets emergency use nod

Cipla to import the US jab; mass rollout after safety assessment on first 100 doses

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @ New Delhi

US-based Moderna on Tuesday got emergency use authorization under India's revised regulatory norms, which allow Covid vaccines approved in certain nations to enter the country without bridging trials. With this, the number of Covid vaccines cleared for use in India has risen to four. Moderna is the first vaccine to get clearance under the revamped regime.

Mumbai-based pharmaceutical firm Cipla will import the vaccine, which has shown 90% efficacy. It is, however, still not clear when the messenger RNA-based vaccine will be available in India and in what quantity.

The vaccine can be stored at 2-8 degree Celsius for a month while the vial is unopened, but needs to be stored at -20 to -25 degree Celsius for medium- and long-term storage, which makes the logistics requirement very challenging. Its two doses have to be administered 28 days apart.

The development comes even as the Centre is yet to take a decision on the demand of indemnity put forth by Moderna, along with another company Pfizer whose coronavirus vaccine is also looking to enter the Indian market.

According to sources in the apex drug regulator, as per the modified rules, the Covid-19 vaccine by Moderna will still need to be administered to 100 people first for the safety assessment and the report will be examined after seven days before mass vaccinations are carried out.

"We are pleased to inform that Moderna vaccine has been approved in India today through an Indian partner and it opens the pathways for the vaccine's availability in the country soon," said V K Paul, member health, Niti Aayog, in a press briefing on Tuesday, shortly after the Central Drugs Standard Control Organisation meeting in which the application by Cipla was cleared.

CM BSY backs Suresh on SSLC examination; Sudhakar on backfoot

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

AS a major lack of coordination among State cabinet ministers over Covid-related issues came out in the open, Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa on Tuesday launched into firefighting yet again. He clarified that the decision to hold SSLC exams was not unilateral.

The CM's defence of Primary and Secondary Education Minister Suresh Kumar was in view of Health Minister Dr K Sudhakar's public statement that he wasn't aware of the decision to hold board exams for SSLC students. Suresh Kumar on Monday announced dates for the exams and within hours, Sudhakar said his colleague hadn't spoken to him about it, suggesting that the decision may have been taken unilaterally.

"Suresh Kumar held discussions with me before deciding on SSLC exam dates. The decision was taken only after a thorough discussion, keeping the welfare of students in mind. This wasn't a unilateral decision. It is unnecessary to create confusion," tweeted Yediyurappa from his official handle.

This public declaration comes as an embarrassment to Sudhakar, who is already sulking over being purportedly sidelined in key decisions. Ever since Deputy Chief Minister Dr CN Ashwath Narayan was made the Chief of Covid Task Force, tensions have been simmering between the two leaders over key issues. While Sudhakar has been pushing for a strict lockdown, Ashwath Narayan wants opening up of all sectors with norms. The two ministers have been taking contradictory views on vaccines, members in the expert committee, medicines, oxygen augmentation etc. P3

INSTANCES THAT HAVE FUELLED TENSION BETWEEN MINISTERS

- Appointment of Dr CN Ashwath Narayan as head of the Covid task force
- Opening of theatres, swimming pools and malls during the pandemic
- Vaccine supply and stock
- Appointment of members for new expert committee on the Covid third wave
- Appointment of S M Jayakara as the interim vice-chancellor of Rajiv Gandhi University of Health Sciences

FINGER OF SUSPICION ON LeT; PM HOLDS HIGH-LEVEL MEET

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Srinagar/New Delhi

AMID the security establishment's assessment that it was the Lashkar-e-Taiba (LeT) that was behind the twin drone strikes on an IAF base in Jammu two days ago, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Tuesday held a high-level meeting with defence minister Rajnath Singh, Union home affairs minister Amit Shah and National Security Advisor Ajit Doval.

J&K police chief Dilbag Singh pointed his finger of suspicion directly at the LeT, saying it is widely using drones for supplies to its terror operatives. He also said that the drones that attacked the Jammu airbase possibly came from Pakistan. "The drones are suspected to have come from across (the border) but we are still probing as of now," he said. Laskhar's role has been established in most cases of arms smuggling through drones along the Line of Control and the International Border in J&K, he added.

Meanwhile, the National Investigation Agency on Tuesday formally took over probe into the airbase attack. Two NIA teams — one from Jammu and the other from Delhi — were already part of the investigation since Sunday. An NIA spokesperson termed the twin blasts as "a well-planned conspiracy".

At the meeting chaired by Modi, the security establishment deliberated on futuristic challenges in the defence sector and on "equipping our forces with modern equipment", sources said. Policy matters on security were discussed, they added but refused to elaborate.

Sources said security agencies have not found any debris of the drones used in the IAF station attack. "Had the debris been found, we could have detected their point of origin and the route from their GPS coordinates. It is believed that the drones were not self-destructive and probably returned to their source after dropping two explosives, including RDX, injuring two IAF personnel," a highly placed source told TNIE.

Database delay on migrants unpardonable, says SC

The plea was filed by activists Anjali Bharadwaj, Harsh Mander and Jagdeep Chhokar. Quantifying the migrant workers, the court said the NSO put it around 38 crore in 2017-18. That works out to more than 1/4th of India's population

THE Supreme Court on Tuesday described as unpardonable the Centre's apathy towards creating a portal for a national database on unorganised workers, and directed its setting up by July 31 so that all migrant workers register and get the benefits of various central and state welfare schemes.

"When the unorganised workers are waiting for registration and are waiting to reap the benefit of various welfare schemes of the states and Centre, the apathy and lackadaisical attitude by the Ministry of Labour and Employment is unpardonable," the 80-page judgment by justices Ashok Bhushan and M R Shah read.

SC: Decide bail in Gauri case uninfluenced by HC order

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

THE Supreme Court on Tuesday issued a notice to the Karnataka government on an appeal filed by filmmaker Kavitha Lankesh, challenging the Karnataka High Court order quashing charges under the Karnataka Control of Organised Crimes Act (KCOCA) against one of the accused in the murder case of her sister and journalist Gauri Lankesh.

According to the plea, Mohan Nayak, accused number 6 in the case, is relying on the impugned judgement to seek bail. The order on Nayak's bail plea is expected before the Karnataka High Court on Wednesday.

The bench comprising Justices AM Khanwilkar, Dinesh Maheshwari and Aniruddha Bose observed that the bail application should be decided uninfluenced by the impugned judgement. The petitioner's lawyers argued that the Special Investigation Team, constituted to probe the Gauri's murder, had clearly indicated that the accused were involved in an organised crime syndicate, which attracted KCOCA charges.

BDA AUDIT IDENTIFIES 11,580 ACRES OF UNUSED LAND

2,000 acres to be taken control of first, demolition and acquisition process to begin from July 8; crucial portions of report almost complete

S LALITHA @BENGALURU

A massive land audit exercise taken up by the Bangalore Development Authority for over two years to identify available land across its 63 layouts has revealed that 11,580 acres, worth nearly Rs 1,000 crore, are yet to be put to any use due to various reasons.

Some of the land is encroached, either fully or partially, while other pieces are stuck in litigation. There are also empty plots, said a senior BDA official.

"In many cases, the court has ruled in favour of BDA, but the authority has not followed up or taken possession of land," he added.

BDA Chairman and Yelahanka MLA S R Vishwanath told The New Indian Express that immediate steps are being taken to gain custody of 2,000 acres out of 11,000-plus acres of land.

"We have asked each of our four divisions to first identify at least 20 acres of land in their respective areas and hand them over to us by July 5. We plan to restart the demolition and acquisition process from July 8," he said.

The Bangalore Development Authority had temporarily stopped its demolition drive after a court order halted it in the light of the pandemic.

"The crucial portions of the report, prepared by EI Technologies at a cost of Rs 10 crore, are almost complete and the final report will be handed over to us in a fortnight," he added.

A senior BDA official said that a rough estimate put the worth of 11,580 acres of land at Rs 995.88 crore.

Legal team to get strong

The legal section of BDA will be upgraded shortly by hiring former High Court judges and ten young lawyers. "We will go to law colleges to carry out campus recruitment and will pay them well too," Vishwanath said.

Another official said the report submitted is exhaustive and has involved a lot of effort. "Using satellite imagery, it provides the exact extent of the encroached portion in each plot. It has listed each survey number and offered comprehensive details on every aspect pertaining to it," he added.

The report has made an assessment of 37,327 acres of land belonging to Bangalore Development Authority.

It has stated that 3,000 acres are karab (government) land, while compensation is still pending for 20,692 acres of land.

No maintenance charges for KG Layout

BENGALURU: The Bangalore Development Authority on Tuesday decided to roll back the maintenance charges it had levied on Nadaprabhu Kempegowda Layout alone, informed BDA Chairman S R Vishwanath on Tuesday. The fee ranging between Rs 100 and Rs 300 per month had been imposed on five new layouts for the ongoing financial year. The bill for it had been levied along with the property tax bill this year and had caused much resentment among KG Layout allottees who cited the incomplete infrastructure there. The other newly-formed layouts of Arkavathy, Sir M Visvesvaraiah, Banashankari 6th Stage and Anjanapura will be charged the maintenance fee, an official said. ENS

Reopen malls, urge owners, CM to discuss with cabinet

ENS @Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister BS Yediyurappa on Tuesday said that a decision to reopen malls will be taken after consulting the State Cabinet. Representatives of Shopping Centre Association of India and mall owners met the chief minister to submit a memorandum requesting the reopening of malls from next week.

The association highlighted the severe loss of livelihood for owners as well as staff at malls. The existing lockdown guidelines will end on July 5. Mall owners have requested the government to allow malls to be opened even if it is with strict restrictions.

"I have assured them that a decision will be taken after discussions with the cabinet ministers. We are yet to come up with restrictions that would be required for such a move. Covid cases are reducing and that is a good thing. Those affected by it should get compensated," he said after a meeting with the representatives.

Not the right time to eat out: Gaurav Gupta

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

WITH the Delta and Delta plus variant cases becoming a worry, Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) Chief Commissioner Gaurav Gupta on Tuesday said it is not the right time for people to think of eating at restaurants or food joints.

He said citizens need to be cautious as these variants are highly transmissible. "Just like last year malls were given permission to open, but not food courts. The same could be done this time also," he said while reacting to the meeting that members of the malls association had with the chief minister on Tuesday.

"Just like wearing a seat belt and helmet is a must and is part of the traffic rules to be followed, now wearing a mask and following Covid-appropriate behaviour is a must while stepping out. Citizens should still refrain from having meals and fine dine outside for some more time," he said.

He added that a discussion will also be held with the police department for their support to check and test people at railway stations, bus stands and crowded places. "Our teams are working and I will do random checks to ensure there are no problems," Gupta said.

Pertaining to the issue of rising cases in Mahadevapura zone, he said a micro-management plan is being prepared for containment zones, isolation and home visits. Talks are also being held with apartment complex associations asking them to keep a close vigil.

Two more tree parks in city to open today

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE Kadugodi and Kannamangala tree parks — developed under Mission-2022 and envisioned by Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa to improve the living conditions in the city — will open for citizens from June 30. While the Kadugodi tree park has been carved out of a reserve forest and has been developed by Karnataka Forest Department, the Kannamangala tree park has been created by the Horticulture Department.

The Kadugodi tree park is spread across 22 acres, of the 177-acre reserve forest. "It has been created near the IT park and Metro line. The area faced a lot of threat due to rising urbanisation. By creating a tree park on a portion of the reserve forest, we have been able to create awareness on its importance and protect it from future loss. Now, the park will draw many people who will help us in conservation efforts, just like in Turahalli," said a forest department official. It houses many endemic and medicinal plants. Each tree also has a unique QR code affixed on it, which when scanned will provide details on it. Created in East Bengaluru, it houses over 8,000 trees of endemic and endangered species

Along with the CM, Forests Minister Aravind Limbavalli will also inaugurate mini Lalbagh in Mahadevapura's Kannamangala on June 30. The unique feature of this area, apart from the gym and children's play area, walking and jogging tracks, is the 2,000 coconut trees, which have been brought in from different parts of the country.

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

30th June: Following the daily ebb and flow of time from last week, we are moving from a lively, emotional, chaotic period, to one which is more stable, secure and respectful towards tradition and authority. It's time to listen to experience, wisdom and our elders and betters.

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
If you think about it, you'll see that this time of year is often significant for your financial affairs. Now that fantastic planetary activity offers you a chance to make important strides forward, you must delay no longer. But if you don't reach a successful conclusion this time, you'll have another chance within about three months.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
After many trials and tribulations, Venus is on your side. More than that, the planets are determined to set you back on top. In addition, a dispute over who owns what should now be settled to your deep satisfaction. You'll probably soon discover that in one important respect, you were wrong. But there's no need to tell anyone - yet!

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
At the moment you are both teaching, and being taught, a number of tough and useful lessons. There are both givers and takers in this world and right now you must decide which side you are on. Just for now, you'd probably do best to let partners take the lead.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Happily, you have the power to lighten your load and you are only a breath away from a life which is happier, more contented and relaxed. Live for today and put long-term questions on the back-burner. Put a little thought into your health and find ways to get rid of some of that nervous energy.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
There is a build-up of planetary activity in the region of your solar chart symbolising your prestige and public achievements. It is important that you now feel you are making your mark in a worthwhile and permanent manner. You need that sense of long-range purpose.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
You must expect the field of ideas to become something of a battle-ground, perhaps because neither you nor your partners are prepared to reach a compromise. By all means stand your ground, but not at the expense of a valued relationship. You're still bothered about your financial prospects, but your worries will be resolved this time next month.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
Loved ones may imagine that you can be manipulated, but how wrong they are. Like everyone else, when pushed too far you react with surprising power, obliging friends and associates to take you seriously. Isn't it about time you stopped worrying and learned to get on and work with what you have?

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
There is no final reason why it should be you who climbs down or eats humble pie, but you must realise that there is little chance that you will win the day through force. Turn on the charm if you want to get your own way. You'll be surprised how willingly certain people respond.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
You are now poised to implement some quite remarkable changes at work, or in your routine affairs. One thing is certain, though; the consent and assistance of friends and partners is absolutely essential. And I don't think you'll have any trouble persuading them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
These are stirring times and it does now seem that all your willingness to meet others halfway is about to pay off handsomely. Your prospects are excellent and your life is now becoming more fulfilled, both in the personal and professional spheres.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
Precautionary measures taken now will help keep you on the right path and ensure that you cope well with exciting possibilities in the coming weeks. Tact and diplomacy must be your most important and necessary qualities. I know they may not come easily, but do try!

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
This simply has to be an exciting period for you, though not one which is necessarily destined to have a great impact on your future. Instead, you will soon be concentrating on activities which you enjoy - and which will open up new contacts.

Yettinahole water in Vedavathi Valley by July-end, says CM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

IF officials get cracking on the Yettinahole project after Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa's instructions on Tuesday, water will flow into the Vedavathi valley as early as July-end. The CM held a meeting on Tuesday to review works of the Yettinahole and Upper Bhadra irrigation projects and has instructed officials to ensure water is released to the Vedavathi valley in the first phase of the project within a month.

After the meeting, Yediyurappa said that moves to declare the Upper Bhadra Project as a national irrigation project are in the final stages. "I will speak with Union ministers personally to speed up the process. The project only requires the Union Cabinet's nod to get national project status. I will visit New Delhi for this if I have to," Yediyurappa said.

> I will speak with Union ministers personally to speed up the process. The project only requires the Union Cabinet's nod to get national project status
> B S Yediyurappa, CM

The CM's proposal to visit New Delhi for the project comes at a time when state BJP leaders are still doing the rounds of the national capital to reach out to the party central leaders and when there are murmurs of his being called to Delhi.

"I will take it up personally to get approval for the Upper Bhadra project as one of national importance. If there are any irregularities in the project, I will hold the officials directly responsible. Irrigation projects must be implemented without any loopholes. Stringent action will be taken in case of any discrepancy," Yediyurappa warned officials.

In the meeting, the CM noted that so far, Rs 9,003.86 crore has been spent for the Yettinahole project that is designed to provide drinking water to more than 68 lakh people in 6,557 villages of 29 taluks in seven districts of southern Karnataka.

On Tuesday, Opposition leader Siddaramaiah wrote a letter to Kerala Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan urging his government not to change the names of places.

On Monday, Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa had said that he will write to his Kerala counterpart on the issue.

In his letter, Siddaramaiah said, "It is unfortunate that there are local bodies in Kasargod taking decisions to change the names of a few villages whose names are derived from Kannada and Tulu. The people of Kasargod share a unique relationship with Kannada and are emotionally connected with the village names. Any attempts to rename the villages will demoralise them and make them feel alienated from their homeland. It is essential to ensure that anti-social elements do not disturb the sense of universal brotherhood. I request you to kindly address the issue, speak to the authorities and ensure such attempts are not made again. I also take this opportunity to highlight the issues related to the closure of Kannada schools in Kasargod, since many parents want their children to study in their mother tongue and states encouraging the same will encourage linguistic diversity."

Meanwhile JDS leader H D Kumaraswamy, who has been speaking about the need to maintain Kannada names, took up the issue and urged people to support regional parties, who, he said, can alone protect Karnataka's interests.

He said some politicians in national parties have an "attitude of detachment" towards regional issues.

He called for people to support regionalism in order to put an end to "neglect and injustice" meted out to the state by the Centre.

Kumaraswamy also claimed that Karnataka will reject the national parties in the 2023 Assembly polls and choose a regional party.

Jarkiholi in Delhi again, claims he was backstabbed

Yogeeshwara meets Yatnal, sparks buzz

BANSY KALAPPA @Bengaluru

ALL may not be well even after it seemed to have ended well. Barely 12 days after BJP national general secretary Arun Singh visited Karnataka to sort out differences in the state party unit, dissension still seems to be simmering. On Tuesday, Tourism Minister C P Yogeeshwara, who had raised a banner of revolt, met Yediyurappa-baiter and MLA Basanagouda Patil Yatnal at a hotel in Vijayapura over lunch and held discussions. In Mysuru, another disgruntled leader, A H Vishwanath, criticised the government's move to conduct SSLC exams in July.

Sources close to the minister claimed they had the "blessings" of a national-level leader and also some others in the state party unit. Yogeeshwara also met Panchamsali Mutt pontiff Jaya Mryutunjaya Swami, who had been critical of the CM.

NAUSHAD BIJAPUR @Belagavi

NOTWITHSTANDING the assurance given by the BJP leadership that he will be re-inducted into the State Cabinet once he gets a clean chit in the alleged sex CD case, former Water Resources Minister Ramesh Jarkiholi landed in New Delhi on Tuesday afternoon and met several BJP and RSS leaders in the evening. He reportedly appealed to the top party leadership to help him return to the cabinet by getting a clean chit in the case.

Sources close to Jarkiholi said he is not ready to rely on either Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa or the state party leaders and that was why he rushed to Delhi to meet the top leadership. After a meeting with his brothers and family in Gokak on Monday, Jarkiholi had decided to wait for some days and not meet any of the leaders until the police file a closure report in the CD case. However, he changed his mind suddenly and rushed to Delhi on Tuesday.

Former minister Ramesh Jarkiholi calls on former Maharashtra CM Devendra Fadnavis in New Delhi on Tuesday.

Jarkiholi met former Maharashtra Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis at the residence of a senior RSS leader in the capital and held a 45-minute meeting before speaking to media persons in the evening. He said he had been backstabbed by three BJP leaders in Karnataka and that he would teach them a fitting lesson.

While denying reports that he will resign as MLA, Jarkiholi said there was no question of quitting the Assembly seat. "Jarkiholi is expected to meet some other top party leaders in New Delhi to get the CD case closed immediately. A court hearing in the case is scheduled to come up for hearing in the state high court in a few days," the sources added.

Gokak brothers eye Council route for Lakhan

NAUSHAD BIJAPUR @Belagavi

DESPITE having three MLAs in the family, the Jarkiholi brothers are now keen to field their youngest sibling, Lakhan Jarkiholi, in the MLC election from the Belagavi local bodies constituency in January 2022.

As Lakhan is not as popular as the three MLAs in his family, it is apparently getting difficult for the Jarkiholis to give him a push via electoral politics. Ever since the BJP leaders met him in Gokak, seeking his support, the brothers are said to be making all efforts to get the BJP to field him in the Council polls. Several associates of the Jarkiholi brothers have suggested that they field Lakhan as an Independent candidate if he is denied a BJP ticket.

"Facing the Council elections is not new for the Jarkiholis as current MLA Satish Jarkiholi won as MLC twice from Belagavi local bodies constituency in the past.

BOILING POINT

Debate on newcomers vs old-timers?

BJP sources said that tensions came to a boiling point at a closed-door meeting a month ago when Covid cases were at a peak. Ashwath Narayan, along with other ministers, allegedly blamed Sudhakar's "inept" handling of the situation for the rise in cases.

Sources added that the two ministers shouted at each other and the Chief Minister had to intervene to pacify them.

The sources said apparent sidelining of Sudhakar by other ministers has also sparked off a 'newcomers' versus 'old timers' tiff.

Sources close to Sudhakar said that he has been trying to take up the issue of his colleagues undermining his authority with Yediyurappa and BJP central leadership, but to no avail.

NEW RULE

Coming from Maha? Carry -ve report or vaccine certificate

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

IN the wake of the emergence of the Delta-plus variant cases in Maharashtra, the Karnataka Government has initiated special surveillance measures and made it mandatory for travellers entering the state to produce either an RT-PCR negative report, or a Covid vaccination certificate.

A notification issued on Tuesday stated that a negative RT-PCR certificate, not older than 72 hours, or a vaccination certificate of at least one vaccine dose must be produced by all travellers coming to Karnataka by flight, bus, train, taxi, personal transport, etc.

"It will be the responsibility of airlines to issue boarding passes to only those who meet the above requirements, and the railway authorities will be responsible for ensuring that all train passengers carry the necessary documents with them. And for those passengers travelling by bus, the bus conductor should ensure that they possess the valid certificates," the notification said.

Deputy Commissioners of the districts bordering Maharashtra, like Belagavi, Bidar, Vijayapura and Kalaburgi, have been instructed to make arrangements to deploy necessary staff at checkposts to ensure that all the vehicles entering the state are checked for compliance of this requirement.

However, an exemption has been provided for constitutional functionaries, health workers and children below the age of two years.

In case of emergency situations, like death in a family and medical requirement, passengers can be allowed even without these documents, but their swab samples should be collected along with details of identity and address. Necessary action will be taken as per protocol depending upon the test results.

The notification warns that violation of the conditions will attract action as per the Karnataka Epidemic Diseases Act, Disaster Management Act and Indian Penal Code.

Citizens pull strings, use connections for vax

Those wanting to get vaccine dose are finding ways to avoid going through regular process which they say is a hassle

RANJANI MADHAVAN @Bengaluru

AS access to Covid-19 vaccines remains difficult, with people not finding slots on the CoWIN portal and not knowing where to walk in for jabs without prior registration, many are resorting to using influence and their connections to get their way.

Be it through government officials, contacts in hospitals or private establishments conducting drives, those looking to get vaccinated are finding ways to avoid going through the regular process of getting the vaccine, which some consider a hassle.

Suresh Ramegowda, a resident of Hebbagodi, said that he had to go through an IAS officer known to him to get the vaccine shot on Huskur Road. "A drive, organized by a fruit market association, was going on for front line workers and those in essential services, but I managed to get the jab there. Government centres here have just about 50 vaccine doses, while hundreds queue up for them. I have got the vaccination done for nearly 80 people who don't have contacts or influence, including people coming from other states, by getting them registered as essential workers. For the past 10 days, there have been no vaccine stocks in government centres," Ramegowda said.

A resident of Shantalanagar and her husband, who did not want to be named, said that she got the vaccine at a private hospital where a prominent doctor's relative is their friend. "Everyone in residents' and citizens' groups are hunting for jabs and, when it comes to booking on CoWIN, it is a game of the fastest fingers first. We wanted to avoid going through this trouble and got it done through a known source for the 45-plus age group," she said.

Mohammed Thwaeb and his wife spent days and nights trying to book slots for the vaccine and found that all of them were always booked. They visited St Philomena's Hospital, but could not get the jab as they were unable to register on CoWIN. Their friend, a cafe owner, was organising a vaccine drive for his employees in collaboration with a private hospital on Miller's Road. "We got the vaccine through the employee quota in the 18-44 age group. We also got the vaccination done for the watchmen in our area and our maid," Thwaeb said.

Varun Salaria and his wife had a similar experience on CoWIN. They tried for many weeks and, as a last resort, contacted a relative working in a private hospital in Whitefield, to get both doses of the vaccine. "We felt bad as it is not fair to jump the queue and get the jab, but then, we were not getting slots on CoWIN. My wife works in a bank, and we have a two-year old child and aged parents living with us, which is why getting the vaccine was important," Varun said.

STATE TO REQUEST CENTRE FOR MORE VACCINES

Bengaluru: The Karnataka government will soon request for more vaccines from the Union government to expedite the vaccination process in the state, said Health and Family Welfare Minister Dr K Sudhakar. After a meeting with health officials in Mysuru on Tuesday, the minister told reporters that he will visit Delhi in the coming days, and request the Union Health Minister to allocate more vaccines to be the state. "But I have never said we are short of vaccines and we have never stopped vaccinating people. Every day, over 2-3 lakh people are being vaccinated. The moment we get vaccines from the Union government, we will distribute them," he said. ENS

Being told to go to MLA's office for jab, say residents

BOSKY KHANNA @Bengaluru

RESIDENTS of Rajarajeshwari Nagar (RR Nagar) have alleged that they are being asked to take the Covid vaccine at the local MLA's office after producing their voter identity cards.

"I went for my vaccine at the primary health centre at Ward No. 160, but the staff said that they had run out of stock. They informed me that I should, instead, go to the MLA's office for the jab with my Aadhaar and voter ID cards. Why are they playing politics even in this free vaccination drive," asked Sharadamma, a resident.

Another resident, who wished not to be identified, said that BBMP staffers at the PHC are diverting all the beneficiaries to the MLA's office, only to be in his good books. "The vaccination is being done at the basement of MLA Munirathna's office. It was being done earlier, but it stopped after a week. It has resumed again," the resident said.

A senior BBMP official, who too wished anonymity, said, "Vaccination could not be done at the PHC on Tuesday as the stock came late. The PHC staff directed people to the MLA's office, only because it is centrally located and convenient for all. The government order mentions that vaccination can be done in any open space and that was the reason this spot was chosen."

Munirathna said, "The vaccination has been happening at my office for the last two to three days. We are asking for voter ID as I want to give the vaccine only to people from our constituency. Those from other areas can take the vaccine in their constituency."

Asked how the vaccine stock was available at his office, while the stock had run out at the PHC, an irritated Munirathna said, "One should apply for an RTI to get the answers."

Shortage of vaccines: Chief Secretary

Chief Secretary P Ravi Kumar told The New Indian Express that there is a shortage of vaccines in the State. Priority is being given to college students and college staff to allow them to attend classes. The State now has a stock of two lakh vaccines, against a demand of five lakhs. Of these, Bengaluru got around 50,000. Manufacturers are supplying a lesser number of vaccines to the Centre, which is why Karnataka's allocation too is low, he said. The State has done well in vaccination over the last month, but the supply has been less over the last few days, he added.

Expert panel to visit Mysuru for death audit

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Mysuru

WITH continuing to report a significant number of fresh cases and the mortality rate bucking rosier trends elsewhere in the state, a death audit expert committee is set to visit the district to ascertain the reasons behind the trend and to offer solutions.

Announcing this on Tuesday, Health Minister Dr K Sudhakar also proposed setting up expert committees in big hospitals to analyse the reasons for the mortality rate not dipping in the district. The district currently has a high Case Fatality Rate of 3.85 per cent and the weekly test positivity stands at 5.48 per cent, which is higher than most districts in the country even though the daily test positivity rate fell to 2.8 per cent on Monday.

Pointing this out as a matter of concern, the Health Minister asked officials to focus on surveillance, especially tracking those with SARI and ILI symptoms.

At the meeting, Sudhakar also noted the high number of those in home isolation in the district. As on Monday, out of 4,351 active cases, 2,668, or 61 per cent of the patients are in home isolation. The minister directed the officials to ensure that every patient, except those with verified facilities to properly isolate at home according to norms, should be sent to Covid Care Centres or to hospitals.

The minister also announced that out of 20 urban centres identified as hotspots in the state, Bannur and Periyapatna are in Mysuru. Similarly, among the rural areas, three are in Mysuru and suggested strong containment measures there.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Highlighting the need for universal healthcare and celebrating the ongoing pride month, Manipal Hospitals launched a Covid vaccination drive for transgenders in Bengaluru on Tuesday. It also rolled out the Russian-made Sputnik V vaccine for the community as well as for other people. A vaccination camp was organised for 110 members of Samara Society, a sexual and gender minorities community-based organization in Yeshwantpur | ASHISHKRISHNA HP

Covid deaths in Karnataka drop to below 100

Bengaluru: Over the past three days, the number of new Covid deaths in the state has remained below 100. However, the mortality rate is still at 1.22 per cent. The deaths had come down to 89 on June 27, but rose to 93 on June 28 and 29. The total number of fatalities are 34,929. On Tuesday, the state recorded 3,222 cases with 14,724 discharges. The total positives are 28,404,28 and the discharges are 27,19,479. The states active cases fell by 11.88 per cent. The recovery rate now stands at 94 per cent. On Tuesday, the recovery rate was 94.38 per cent while it was 93.56 per cent on Monday. ENS

FAKE BENEFICIARIES?

50 women in college bus at night raises doubts

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Mangaluru

THE Mulky police have picked up a bus driver and a nurse of the Kanachur Institute of Medical Sciences after they were found transporting about 40-50 women in a college bus on Sunday night, triggering suspicion that the women were hired as fake patients for an inspection.

At a press meet on Tuesday, Police Commissioner N Shashikumar said that some gram panchayat members and villagers grew suspicious on seeing women getting into the college bus at Nagabhanahalli in Karnad village around 8.15 pm.

"When they questioned the driver and nurse, initially they said that the women are being taken for a Covid vaccination drive that took place in Kanachuru public school which is 38 kilometres from Karnad village. But when the villagers found it to be untrue after calling up the local Public Health Centre and others, the duo said that they were being taken to the Kanachur Medical College and Hospital for an inspection," said the police commissioner.

Shashikumar said that based on a complaint from a villager, they have lodged cases under the National Disaster Management Act (NDMA) and Epidemic Diseases Act.

Abdul Rehman, director, Kanachur Institute of Medical Sciences, maintained that the women were being taken for a free vaccination drive that was held at Kanachur Public School on Monday. "Since the buses would be busy ferrying the staff on Monday morning, we thought of bringing them on Sunday night itself. A group of patients from that village used to regularly reach out to the hospital for medical purposes and we thought of helping them out during the free vaccination drive. The nurse was present in the bus to check the temperature of women. Unfortunately, due to some confusion, they could not get vaccinated," he said.

I'm happy SSLC exams will be held, says teen flower seller

BOSKY KHANNA @Bengaluru

THE lockdowns and pandemic over the last one year has made 14-year-old Banashankari only stronger and more confident. While some girls of her age have dropped out of school, married off or forced into manual labour, she has become independent.

She not only sells flowers outside the Adi Shakti temple, but also keeps studying on the mobile phone while doing her work. She earns small amounts by selling flowers on Tuesdays and Saturdays and gives it to her family to pay for her education. The chanting of hymns, ringing of bells, prayers of devotees and bargaining by customers do not disturb her in her studies.

"I earn Rs 500 a week. It is less, but something is better than nothing. In Grade 8, I got the second rank, but in Grade 9, I barely passed as there were no exams. This year, I am in SSLC and I am glad that the government is going ahead with the exams. There is no time to waste. I attend classes while selling flowers. As I also record my lessons,

I make notes from them after returning home in the afternoon. My favourite subject is science, especially biology and chemistry. I want to be a doctor. This pandemic has made me realise that my decision is right," she said. Her father is a weaver at Chickpet, her mother is a homemaker and her elder brother did not clear his second PUC exams last year.

Banashankari, who studies at Mitralaya Girls High School, feels sad that while her friends are busy studying, she has to work. But she has realised the difficult economic condition of her family and wants to contribute. She said that she will continue to do it in the future too. "My best moment this year was when I went back to school in May. Though it was for just 10 days, it was good. I met my friends, teachers, attended classes physically and got some doubts cleared," she said.

Touched by the tough life the youngster is leading, Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike Chief Commissioner Gaurav Gupta visited the temple on Tuesday and interacted with Banashankari. He assured her of all financial and logistic support for her education, in his personal capacity. When Gupta asked her what she wanted, she told him she needed a laptop which will help her in studies in the future too.

KSRP men take time off to sober up

With aim to make the force efficient, over 150 personnel sent to de-addiction centres

MG CHETAN @ Bengaluru

IN a move that has elevated the 'spirits' among Karnataka State Reserve Police (KSRP) personnel, over 150 policemen have been sent to de-addiction centres in an effort to make them quit alcohol. The move is aimed at making the disciplined force more efficient and free from alcoholics, which has turned out to be successful.

It is learnt that despite reminders to quit drinking for almost a year, nothing had changed. On March 1, Additional Director General of Police (ADGP) of the KSRP, Alok Kumar, issued a memo to the heads of all KSRP battalions and schools to identify staff with alcohol addiction and have them sent to de-addiction centres.

"It was done in the interest of our staff as alcohol-related health problems, such as high diabetes, kidney and liver problems, were reasons for the death of serving KSRP men, in 50 per cent of the cases. The addiction was also reflecting in their work. Hence, they were asked to undergo de-addiction sessions," Kumar told TNIE.

KSRP staff, who consume alcohol, were categorised as men with high, medium, and low addiction, based on their drinking habits and frequency. Those with moderate drinking habits were spared, while 400 men were found with medium addiction. "Counselling was arranged to help them quit alcohol. About 150 people were found with high addiction and were sent to two de-addiction centres in Bengaluru and Mangaluru," Kumar said.

Knowing that keeping them in the centres for just 15-20 days wouldn't help, it was decided to send them on a three-month-long session, considering them on duty. "They were divided into batches and sent to the de-addiction centres. Currently, the last batch of 38 men is at a centre," Alok Kumar added.

He stated that the exercise has yielded results with 80 per cent of those who underwent the programme quitting the habit. When asked whether any staff opposed the move, Kumar said, "I spoke to them and also involved their family members and convinced them that it was for their good."

Gujarat cops get Pujari's custody in 2017 case

MG CHETAN @ Bengaluru

THE Gujarat police have been permitted to take gangster Ravi Pujari into their custody for 30 days in connection with a 2017 shootout case, in which a municipal councillor was attacked.

An SI of the Crime Branch of Ahmedabad had filed an application before a city court, requesting it to remand Pujari in Gujarat police custody. He had submitted that the police needs to record the statement of the accused before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate (ACJM) Court of Borsad in Anand district, and also complete other investigations in his presence, in connection with a case registered for an attempt to murder and under the Arms Act. Pujari's counsel had opposed remanding him in police custody.

On Tuesday, the 61st Additional City Civil & Sessions Judge ordered remanding Pujari in Gujarat police custody for 30 days. The court also directed the Gujarat police to provide additional security to the accused when he is in their custody, as there is a threat to his life.

The case is related to a shootout on Pragnesh Patel, an independent municipal councillor of Borsad town in Anand district. On January 13, 2017, Patel was attacked by two bike-bourne assailants outside his house. He had later recovered.

Seva Sindhu: HC calls labour dept secy

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

BASED on a report by the Karnataka State Legal Services Authority (KSLSA) on illegal gratification being collected from unorganised sector workers to upload their applications on Seva Sindhu portal and for attestation for one-time compensation of Rs 2,000 announced by the State Government, the Karnataka High Court has directed the labour department secretary to appear before it on Thursday.

The division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice Suraj Govindaraj passed the order after going through findings of the report, which was submitted by KSLA Member Secretary Shashidhar Shetty. To probe the allegations against Seva Sindhu Centres, Shetty had directed a few member-secretaries of Mysuru, Belagavi, Mangaluru, Hassan, Ramanagar, Bidar and Shivamogga to conduct discreet inquiries and submit a report.

The KSLSA report found that the government has made a provision for online application on Seva Sindhu Portal, but unorganised sector workers are unable to upload the application because of their illiteracy and lack of awareness. Middlemen are taking advantage of this and are allowed to charge a commission by the Seva Sindhu Centres and labour department.

BMRCL PERMITTED TO TRANSLOCATE TREES

The Karnataka High Court on Tuesday permitted the BMRCL to translocate 115 trees which were coming in the way of Metro line work in different parts of the city. A division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice Suraj Govindaraj passed the order after BMRCL provided the agreement executed with the contractor to translocate the trees. As per court directions, with regard to a PIL filed by Dattatreya T Devare and another, the Technical Experts Committee has suggested the place where the trees are to be translocated. Taking note, the court directed the Tree Officer or any officer deputed by him to be present during translocation, and BMRCL should submit a quarterly report on the trees to the Tree Officer.

AP wants Krishna board to act against TS

Telangana drawing more water than agreed from Srisailam reservoir for power generation, complains state

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Vijayawada

WITH Telangana government continuing to disregard the directive of Krishna River Board Management (KRMB), the Andhra Pradesh authorities have once again written to the board seeking 'stringent action to restrain Telangana' from drawing more water from Srisailam reservoir for power generation at hydroelectric station on the left bank.

Engineer-in-chief (ENC) of irrigation C Narayana Reddy has also informed the board that the Telangana government's order to generate hydropower at 100 per cent capacity will affect AP's drawls, which could be done only when the water reaches above 854 feet, as four tmc of water per day would be used by the neighbouring state for power generation.

In the letter written to the member secretary of KRMB on Tuesday, Narayana Reddy noted that despite the KRMB's order to stop withdrawl of water for power generation, Telangana continued to use large quantities.

"Despite repeated requests, Telangana is resorting to drawing water for power generation in the larger quantities (16,877 cusecs on June 28)," the ENC explained.

According to the information, Telangana authorities have utilised 6.9 TMC, or 40 per cent, of the 17.36 TMC inflows to Srisailam since June 1, even at +808.4 feet much below the minimum drawdown level (MDDL) of +834 feet, for power generation. The water was utilised for power generation even though sufficient water is available in Nagarjuna Sagar Project (NSP) for initial Kharif operations and no immediate requirement for irrigation under NSP.

> Telangana is unilaterally drawing water for power generation without any orders from KRMB...This attitude of unilateral drawls amounts to disregard to the authority
> C Narayana Reddy, ENC

For the record, the ENC had already written to KRMB on June 10 and subsequently on June 23, raising the same issue. Following this, KRMB on Monday asked Telangana to halt power generation on the left bank. With the 'disregard' of the directive by Telangana, the ENC has written to the board for the third time on Tuesday.

Noting that except during floods, water drawls from common reservoirs of Srisailam and NSP are to be done only with the release orders of KRMB, AP argued that power generation is incidental to meet irrigation requirements under Krishna Delta System and NSP. "But, Telangana is unilaterally drawing water for power generation without any orders from KRMB and not even informing KRMB. This attitude of unilateral drawls amounts to disregard to the authority and is in violation of the agreed principles being followed in water drawls..." the ENC urged.

Madras HC issues notice over NEET

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Chennai

THE Madras High Court on Tuesday ordered the State government to respond within a week on a plea moved by the BJP state unit seeking to quash its decision of forming a nine-member committee to study the impact of the NEET exam on students from socially backward classes. The court observed that the State cannot constitute a committee without the leave of the Supreme Court.

"There can be little room for the State to set up any committee for ascertaining whether the NEET-based admission process has prejudicially affected the socially backward students," observed the bench of Chief Justice Sanjib Banerjee and Justice Senthilkumar Ramamoorthy. "It is completely futile to set up a committee.. you have to obtain the leave of the Supreme Court, otherwise this exercise should stop," the Chief Justice said before adjourning the hearing to Monday.

The issue pertains to a PIL moved by BJP State secretary, K Nagarajan, seeking to quash an order issued by the Tamil Nadu government on June 10, constituting a committee headed by Justice AK Rajan to study the impact of NEET.

The petitioner contended that the constitution of the nine-member committee is "arbitrary, illegal, unconstitutional and unreasonable", given the Supreme Court's 2017 order.

During the hearing on Tuesday, State Advocate General R Shunmugasundaram argued that the constitution of the committee was a policy decision of the State, backed by the election manifesto of the ruling party and the demand of the people.

The bench directed the notice be served to the Additional Solicitor General's office, for the Union government to indicate its stance on the issue.

HIGH-SPEED ACCIDENT

CCTV footage helps cops nail accused in Audi-auto crash case

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Hyderabad

IN what seems to be a scene straight out of a movie, Prabhakar, the family driver of Vakiti Raghunandan Reddy, the owner of the Audi A8 car which rammed an autorickshaw and killed a passenger in Madhapur, surrendered before the police, claiming to be driving the vehicle at the time of the accident.

But the police soon understood that the driver was trying to save Raghunandan Reddy's attempt to shield his son Sujith Reddy, who was actually behind the wheels, in a state of insobriety on that fateful night.

When the police confronted Prabhakar with CCTV evidence, Prabhakar squealed that he was acting as a cover for Sujith at the insistence of his employer.

Sujith and Aashish, a techie, were arrested under culpable homicide not amounting to murder, drunken and rash driving and for causing disappearance of evidence of offence. The police also arrested Raghunandan Reddy for harbouring the offender, forcing his driver to impersonation, informed P Ravindra Prasad, Inspector.

Police also collected evidence showing Sujith, Aashish, along with a few other friends consuming alcohol on Saturday night till Sunday morning. On Sunday at 5.20am, they started the vehicle and reached the spot at 5.24 am. Sujith lost control and rammed into the auto from the side, causing the vehicle to overturn several times. A passenger was thrown out of the auto and died on impact with the ground, as the driver escaped with minor injuries.

The accused had gotten down from the vehicle, removed the number plates and also threatened two eyewitnesses, before fleeing from the scene.

On Monday morning, Sujith's father Raghunandan Reddy, who owns a school, came to the police station along with Prabhakar, and surrendered him to police.

Accused was helping others

ACCORDING to the petitioner's lawyers, Nayak was actively providing shelter to the killers and was involved in continuous unlawful activity, as defined within the meaning of KCOCA.

It was after this, the lawyers said, a supplementary chargesheet with KCOCA charges was filed. The case pertains to the murder of journalist Gauri Lankesh outside her home in Bengaluru in September 2017. The plea submits that the complaint was lodged under Section 302 of IPC against unknown persons by Kavita Lankesh and the investigation was entrusted to SIT.

'Can't be driven by emotions'

ENS @ Bengaluru

TERMING as an 'emotional statement' the contention of the State Government that it has sought permission to take the court into confidence and form a committee to resolve the fee issue for the academic year 2021-22, considering the plight of the parents, the advocates for the private schools management argued before the Karnataka High Court that they are governed by the law and not by emotional statements.

In response to the submission made by the Advocate General Prabhuling Navadagi before Justice Sachin Shankar Magadum that the plight of the parents is unexplainable, as most of them have lost their livelihood due to the lockdown, senior counsel Madhusudan R Naik, representing some private schools, submitted that they are governed by law and not by the emotional statement.

Naik also argued that the state government doesn't have the power to regulate the fee which is in the domain of the management of schools, as ruled by the Supreme Court in the TMA Pai Foundation and Rajasthan cases. A general order cannot be passed to satisfy somebody's emotional statement, he added.

Senior Advocate Uday Holla, representing a body of some private schools managements, argued that the state, on the one hand, passed an order to reduce the fee. On the other hand, it also passed an order to pay minimum wages to teaching and non-teaching staff. In such a situation, how can schools survive, he questioned.

Prior to this, Advocate General Prabhuling Navadagi argued that the State Government sought permission from the court to take it into confidence in forming a panel headed by a former judge of the high court for fixation of fee. This is because the government has received numerous representations from parents who are practically unable to pay the fees due to the unprecedented situation created by Covid. Also, though the court passed an interim order to take individual grievances of parents who are unable to pay the fee last academic year, many schools had violated the order by collecting 100 per cent fee, instead of 70 per cent, which was fixed for the year 2019-20, he argued.

STIMULUS PACKAGE TO BOOST CONSUMPTION, ECONOMIC GROWTH

The government's ₹6.3 lakh crore economic relief package is designed to save the nation from further economic ruin and fetch robust growth recovery. Policy-watchers say the timing may be right, but they believe the government is making haste slowly. Though the package rightly taps four key sectors, namely healthcare, agriculture, tourism and micro finance, it's unclear if these supply-side measures alone can trigger the needed demand boost. The human misery that unfolded recently due to the second wave of Covid-19 has shifted healthcare expenditure as a routine policy option to an economic necessity. So, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman finally budged, pledging ₹50,000 crore worth credit guarantee to the sector at lower interest rates. And to match and influence the private sector's capacity creation, she vowed to spend an additional ₹23,000 crore to enhance medical infrastructure with a specific focus on paediatric care. This is a welcome step, although critics whisper the actual figure should be much more.

Agriculture, which cushioned the shock for Covid-19, got a leg up by way of better seeds and fertiliser subsidies. These efforts, the Centre hopes, will help increase crop productivity and hence farmers' income. The relief measures comprising credit support to tourism and other sectors complement the RBI's earlier decision to open a special window for contact-intensive sectors. But credit guarantees do not tantamount to fiscal outlays and the Centre will cut a cheque only when the guarantees are revoked. It means, the headline impact for the government is little and so the fiscal deficit slippage could be minimal.

Interestingly, Monday's announcements briefly touched upon a new process for PPP projects and asset monetisation. Though Sitharaman didn't elaborate, it reflects the intent towards aggressive revenue-raising efforts. The Centre also got lucky with the RBI transferring an unexpected dividend last month. Besides, direct tax collections in Q1 jumped 66%, while GST collections crossing the ₹1 lakh crore mark for eight months in a row indicates better-than-expected revenue. This, along with expenditure rationalisation, should leave enough room to spend more on the key missing piece of boosting direct consumption.

NEW T'GANA CONG CHIEF HAS TASK CUT OUT

No one envies the newly appointed TPCC president A Revanth Reddy, who has inherited a Telangana Congress whose body and soul are in a forlorn state. Losing one election after another since the 2018 Assembly polls, the party has been on a relentless downhill journey. As the senior leaders squabbled with one another, the party never inspired faith. At this juncture, Revanth Reddy has his task cut out. He has to bring the disparate elements together, apply a balm to their bruised egos and make the party battle-ready. By asking him to lead the TPCC, his Delhi bosses went along with the perception that Reddys, a dominant caste in Telangana, alone can take on Velamas, another powerful caste, to which Chief Minister K Chandrasekhar Rao belongs.

The party initially feared that a conflagration would flare up if Revanth Reddy was appointed chief as the seniors in the party, cutting across the differences they had among themselves, rose against him as they saw in him a threat to their common interest. The dissidents' charges against Reddy were that he made a lateral entry into the party only in 2017 and that he carried the taint of the vote for note scam of 2015. His detractors called him a TDP leader in Congress' clothing and that the party would become the TDP's proxy. But the dissidence turned out to be not as much as was feared; the new leader put his best foot forward by calling on the senior politicians who opposed him and sought their cooperation, including K Jana Reddy and ailing V Hanumanth Rao. Now Revanth Reddy has to lift the sagging morale of the party workers. This may not be very difficult as he can make them eat out of his hand with his fiery speeches and prepare them for the upcoming by-polls for the Huzurabad Assembly seat where former minister Eatala Rajender is BJP's candidate and the TRS is hell-bent on winning it. The Congress has not won the seat since 1978 and Revanth has to perform a miracle to make the party reach at least the second position as this may prove to be a game-changer for the party as it nears the next Assembly polls in 2023.

Drug control authorities around the world chose to dismiss or stay indifferent to the sustained efficacy of Ivermectin despite studies showing its effectiveness

HOW TO PREVENT A THIRD WAVE OF COVID-19

DR KAVERY NAMBISAN

AMIT BANDRE

This is the first time in the history of a disease that its course is so anxiously charted and its possible surge predicted months in advance. Medical experts in India have forewarned of a third wave in the near future. Our government is pushing hard with vaccinations. But we have to ask the question: Even if vaccination is the best Covid terminator, is it the only one?

All estimates confirm that it will take eight to ten months to vaccinate an adequate number of people in our country. During that time, those who are unprotected while waiting for the vaccine will be vulnerable to infection. As lockdowns are relaxed, the virus will spread. Given the likelihood and the dreaded implications of a third wave, we need to look at other possibilities of halting the virus.

People have the right to know: In 1979, two scientists Campbell and Omura discovered the drug Ivermectin, which was found to be effective against a number of parasitic infestations. The drug was produced by the pharmaceutical company Merck and in the last 40 years of its use, 3.7 billion tablets have been consumed worldwide. It figures in the WHO list of essential drugs. The two scientists were awarded the Nobel Prize in Chemistry for their discovery. Ivermectin is safer than commonly used medicines like Ibuprofen, paracetamol, penicillin and aspirin. In India, every medical practitioner is familiar with this drug that is also safe for children. However, parasitic infestations are the bane of economically backward countries in Africa and Asia. For the manufacturer, it is not a profit-making drug, so Merck did not renew its patent after the early years. Ivermectin is now being produced by several companies.

In 2020, during the early months of the pandemic, an Australian scientist experimenting with Ivermectin in vitro found that it killed the Covid-19 virus. He wrote about his findings and it was noted by a doctor working in a large government hospital in Bangladesh. He used Ivermectin on 60 patients and found that it cured most of them. Moreover, none of them developed any serious complications of the disease.

As the news of this drug being effective in treating Covid spread, hundreds and then thousands of doctors began to use it all over the world. The results were extraordinary: When given in the early stage of viral replication (first five days) and along with other supportive vitamins, Ivermectin is far more effective than other more expensive drugs. In later stages of the disease also it works because of its anti-inflammatory properties that help avoid serious complications.

By August 2020, Ivermectin was being used in Bangladesh, Mexico, South Africa, Israel, Spain, Italy, Slovakia and Japan, besides in the US, UK and many countries in Europe. In India, a doctor in Deoria district of Uttar Pradesh has treated over 4,000 patients; another in Kandivali, Mumbai, has treated 6,000 (most of them from corporate houses) and a professor of ENT working in Mangaluru has treated over 4,000 patients. There are many others who have treated patients in large numbers. Those of us who work in smaller towns and rural areas have experience with several hundreds.

Ivermectin is also used as a preventive medicine for those who are at high risk of infection, like family members of Covid positive individuals and all frontline workers, which includes healthcare professionals, the police, traffic and railway personnel, bus, auto and taxi drivers, bank employees and more. It is useful in treating post-Covid complications and long Covid, although the most dramatic results are seen when it is used early. We believe that this drug should be quickly cleared for use countrywide and also provided to ASHA workers in their health kits, with clear instructions for use. In fact, Ivermectin should be given to all those who are not vaccinated or are partially vaccinated. After the initial three tablets given on three consecutive days, a once-weekly dose of 12 mg provides enough protection against the virus. When a drug that is safe and cheaply available can work effectively during the waiting period for the vaccine, is there any reason not to use it? Mass prophylaxis is a sure way of stopping transmission. It should be urgently implemented by the Centre, because all mechanisms of mutation and spread are not only of national but also international significance.

> If patients can recover quickly with a tablet that can be taken at home, we can undo lockdowns, open up business and tourism, and run colleges and schools without waiting until the whole world is vaccinated

In December 2020, a group of medical experts formed the International Front-Line Covid-19 Critical Care Alliance (FLCCC) led by Drs Paul Marik, Umerto Meduri, Jose Inglesias, Peirre Kory and Joe Varon. In the UK, the British Ivermectin Recommendation Development panel (BIRD) was founded by a team led by Dr Lawrie. To date, there have been over 60 clinical trials and 31 randomised clinical trials done on 25,000 patients by 549 scientists on Ivermectin use in Covid-19 infections. They firmly endorse the universal use of the drug.

However, there is one dilemma: Major pharmaceutical companies around the world have invested trillions of dollars in the manufacture of vaccines. One can understand their need to recover costs and make profits by selling vaccines to every country. But it should not mean that we sacrifice millions of lives in order to make it okay for the companies. Sadly, this is happening. Drug control authorities around the world and (ironically) WHO itself chose to dismiss or stay indifferent to the sustained efficacy of Ivermectin. Medical professionals who work in superspeciality hospitals are none too happy about a drug that will drastically reduce hospital dependency.

The saddest part of the story is that the media has apparently chosen to look only at one side of the coin. What other explanation is there for the shrill publicity given to expensive drugs like Remdesivir and several newer drugs while the success, safety and ease of use of Ivermectin is treated with deafening silence? If patients can recover quickly with a tablet that can be taken at home, we can undo lockdowns, open up business and tourism, and run colleges and schools without waiting until the whole world is vaccinated. None of this is to say that vaccinations are not necessary. What we are trying to reinforce is that we should use the simpler, safer, quicker method of mass prophylaxis with Ivermectin as soon as possible. If properly planned, it can be done in a matter of days.

To put it simply, it makes very good sense to Ivermectinise the world while going ahead with vaccinations at the same time. Given the crumbling economy of many poor countries, universal vaccination is a long way off. Every single Covid patient is a risk to herself and the rest of the world.

In conclusion, we quote Michael Capuzzo, a five-time Pulizer shortlisted writer from his article on Ivermectin titled The Drug that Cracked Covid. He writes: "I do not know of a bigger story in the world than this."

THE NEED TO PRIORITISE VACCINATION FOR CHILDREN

LAVU SRI KRISHNA DEVARAYALU
YSRCP MP from Narasaraopet, Andhra Pradesh

The Union government's decision to cancel the CBSE Class 12 board exams ends the prospect of students having to take the examination amidst a pandemic that has infected three crore Indians. The ferocity of the second wave and the prospect of a devastating third wave have influenced the Centre's thinking. The decision comes more than a year since the first lockdown in April 2020 shut schools for 24 crore children.

Over the past year, students and teachers have had to adapt to the 'learning from home' model, where digital became the dominant medium. This forced change, however, is hardly desirable and the digital divide is leaving behind crores of children. Digital education favours the privileged children who had better learning outcomes even before the school closure. While there are stories of dedicated teachers visiting children at home or teaching in school playgrounds, these solutions are not scalable. The result is a worsening of the silent learning crisis that has been plaguing our children since before the pandemic.

Apart from impacting learning, school closures have also affected children's health. The health ministry informed Parliament that there had been a 31% drop in vaccinations during April to June 2020, many of which are carried out in schools and anganwadis. Over 10 crore children have also been deprived of mid-day meals, which have been instrumental in reducing child malnutrition. Finally, there are children among the 23 crore Indians who have been pushed into poverty and will never return to class. Schoolgirls face the grim prospect of being forced into marriage or being trafficked.

In sum, prolonged school closures have reversed decades of gains in enrolment, learning and children's health. We are yet to come to terms with this challenge. The first step must be reopening schools after vaccinating all children, teachers, and support staff. For this, the Centre must prioritise vaccinating children between 12 and 18 years. But none of the vaccines being used in India have been approved for children. Bharat Biotech's Covaxin and Zydus Cadila's ZyCoV-D are currently undergoing trials among children but awaiting regulatory clearance. Even after approval, Covaxin's availability will be a challenge because it accounts for less than 10% of the doses administered. However, there are global alternatives.

The US-made Pfizer-BioNTech mRNA vaccine is already being used by advanced economies like America, Canada, the European Union, Singapore, Japan and Israel to vaccinate children. More than 65 lakh children in the US have already received a dose. Reports claim that Pfizer will supply five crore doses to India. The Centre must fast-track this import agreement and direct these doses towards children between ages 12-18 years. The approval process can be fast-tracked because of the waiver for bridging trials of vaccines approved by the WHO or in the US, UK, Europe or Japan.

> Over 10 crore children have been deprived of mid-day meals, which have been instrumental in reducing child malnutrition. There are children among the 23 crore Indians who have been pushed into poverty and will never return to class. Prolonged school closures have reversed decades of gains in education

Yet, securing the vaccines is only half the battle. We must also work towards rapid inoculation of children. Three broad solutions can be suggested here.

First, prioritise children in rural and remote areas with low internet connectivity and smartphone penetration. Schools should be used as walk-in vaccination centres where children can enter their classrooms and get vaccinated in a comfortable environment. Children who are not enrolled should be allowed to walk into their nearest school to get a jab.

Second, vaccine hesitancy remains a problem in rural India. To alleviate this, state governments should actively encourage gram pradhans to spread positive messaging around vaccinations amongst parents and community elders in their villages. Teachers can also be asked to speak with their student's parents to increase vaccine awareness.

Third, there is a gender gap in the current vaccination drive—for every 1,000 men vaccinated, there are only 871 women inoculated. This gap may worsen with children as parents may prioritise vaccinating boys over girls. To solve this, state governments can link existing schemes of cash transfers for sending girls to school with their vaccination status. Research shows that these incentives in the case of BCG and pentavalent vaccines had a large positive impact on vaccination rates.

With a fast-track import agreement and a mission-mode inoculation drive, our children can dream of re-entering classes within this year. The priority should be reopening upper primary, secondary and senior secondary classes in rural areas. This can be done by vaccinating the roughly 10 crore rural children aged 12-18 years. The Centre should target reopening schools by November so that children can celebrate Children's Day on November 14 in their school. This will mean vaccinating 16 lakh children in rural areas daily between July and November. While this is a tall order, pursuing it will save another academic year from being washed out.

There are many Indian policymakers who hope for a Roaring 20s post-pandemic decade where India's economy will grow rapidly. They would do well to remember that the worsening silent learning crisis among our children can seriously undermine this possibility. But we have the solution—vaccinate children and reopen schools.

Only location is different

It is discriminatory on the part of the European Union to deny a green pass to the recipients of the Covishield vaccine to travel to EU nations when the same vaccine produced in other countries has been accepted. The AstraZeneca jab and Covishield are both made of the same seed stock of the virus and have the same manufacturing process. The only difference is the location of production.
Haribandhu Panigrahi, Tarbha

EU's decision unethical

Though there is a difference only in the name of the vaccines and not in the content or process of production, the EU rejecting permission to Covishield recipients is not just discriminatory but also unethical. This will certainly affect developing nations like India as many students and working professionals depend on EU countries for education and employment.

Twitter's misbehaviour

The wicked designs of micro-blogging site Twitter to show the Union Territories of J&K and Ladakh as a separate country in the global map on its website is indicative of the temerity of the social media platform. It seems to think that it can berate the security of India to any extent. This trend must not be allowed to continue for the sake of national interest.

Serious security threat

India is facing a new form of attack from the skies in the form of drones, which pose a serious security threat to sensitive military installations. India still has to identify if the attack on the IAF base in Jammu was orchestrated from within our borders or from outside, perhaps in Pakistan. Immediate steps to counter the attack must be taken.

Timely fiscal help

Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman's announcement allotting ₹1.1 lakh crore for a loan guarantee scheme for Covid-affected sectors, especially health, telecom and tourism, will not only help accelerate the revival of the economy but also bolster employment opportunities for people. It is a timely gesture by the Centre.

Merits of GST

This is with reference to Its time to revisit the basics of GST (Jun 29). While mentioning the shortfalls of GST, the author has concealed the merits of the tax regime and its consumer-friendly aspects. Due to the GST, the general public is well aware of the rate of tax of almost all items. It has also helped avoid state monopoly and has made tax rates uniform throughout the nation.

Centre turns down suggestions to revise vaccine allocation formula

States want stock to private hospitals reduced, govt replies current arrangement effective

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @New Delhi

DESPITE demands from at least three states to revise the Covid-19 vaccine allocation between government and private channels from the existing 75:25 ratio to 90:10, the Centre has made it clear this is not happening anytime soon.

Odisha Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik and his Tamil Nadu counterpart MK Stalin have written to the Centre, saying that the distribution formula of vaccines should be reviewed. Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister YS Jagan Mohan Reddy has made a similar appeal and so has the health department of Jharkhand.

After revising its earlier vaccination policy, the Centre is procuring and supplying 75% of the vaccines manufactured in India. These are being administered for free to all adults in government facilities. The remaining 25% is for supply by the private hospitals in the decentralised and liberalised vaccination policy. Private hospitals have been permitted to charge ₹150 per dose apart from the cost of the vaccine.

In their letter, Patnaik and Stalin contended that the share of participation of the private sector in their states has been rather poor. In Odisha, only about 4-5% of the vaccines administered have been in private hospitals. This is around 10% in Tamil Nadu. According to Jharkhand's Additional Chief Secretary (health) Arun Kumar Singh's letter to the Union health ministry, share of vaccination in private hospitals in the state has so far has been only 2%.

In its review meetings, top authorities in the Union health ministry too have taken up the matter with several states — mainly Uttar Pradesh, Bihar and Odisha — saying that the participation of the private sector needs to grow.

In a press briefing on Tuesday, Lav Agarwal, joint secretary in the health ministry, said the vaccination policy has just been revised and while feedback from states is welcome, there is no plan to incorporate further changes immediately.

"We keep discussing with states (vaccination policy) and if need be, we will examine the suggestions. But the new policy has come into effect from June 21 only and it has pushed up the average daily vaccinations remarkably, which shows it is working well," he said.

So far, over 33 crore vaccine doses have been administered in India and while the CoWin dashboard by the government does not give a break-up of doses provided in the government and private centres, it is understood that private share may be less than 20%.

The suggestions by Tamil Nadu and Odisha come even as the Centre has been pushing the states to raise private sector participation. In a strategy paper issued on new vaccination policy, the government said the allotment of 25% of vaccines produced to private hospitals is aimed at giving an incentive to the manufacturers.

Vaccination share of private hospitals under 20%

Number of doses given in government and private vaccination centres is not available in the government's CoWin portal. So far, over 33 crore vaccine doses have been administered in India. It is reliably learnt that the share of private hospitals will not exceed 20 per cent.

Spate of FIRs filed against Twitter, for map and child porn

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi/Lucknow/Bhopal

EVEN as Twitter is in the government's crosshairs over new IT rules, trouble is mounting for the company and its senior officials in India. Multiple cases have been registered against them over a distorted map of the country and child pornographic contents.

Acting upon a complaint from National Commission for Protection of Child Rights, Delhi Police's Cyber Cell on Tuesday registered an FIR against Twitter India for allegedly allowing access to child pornography in the form of various links and accounts. The microblogging site has been booked under various sections of Indian Penal Code, Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act and IT Act, said Delhi Police.

FIRs have also been registered against Twitter India Managing Director Manish Maheshwari and other senior officials in Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh over a wrong map of India put up on the microblogging website.

The first case was registered on Monday night against Maheshwari and Twitter India's news partnership head Amrita Tripathi in Bulandshahr district of Uttar Pradesh on a complaint by a local Bajrang Dal leader, Praveen Bhati. The two senior officials were booked under Section 505(2) of IPC (statements conducing to public mischief) and Section 74 of IT Act, which deals with publication for fraudulent purpose.

A world map showing J&K and Ladakh detached from India emerged on the career section of the social media giant's website on Monday. Twitter removed it as it sparked outrage. On Tuesday, Madhya Pradesh Police's Cyber Cell registered a case against the Twitter India MD and others in Bhopal. The FIR was registered under Section 505(2) of IPC by social activist and BJP leader Durgesh Keswani. "If it's found that the alleged crime invites IT Act sections, its provisions will be added," a police official said.

UP MOVES SC FOR ARREST OF TWITTER MD

New Delhi: The Uttar Pradesh government on Tuesday approached the Supreme Court, challenging the Karnataka High Court order granting protection from arrest to Twitter India Managing Director Manish Maheshwari in connection with the Ghaziabad assault video case. Maheshwari has also filed a caveat, seeking an opportunity to present his case before the top court passes any order. Ghaziabad police had issued a notice to Maheshwari, asking him to appear at the Loni police station for questioning in the investigation.

Not vaccinated, MP teenager gets certificate as 56-year-old

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bhopal

WHILE the country is yet to start vaccinating children below 18 against Covid-19, a 13-year-old in Madhya Pradesh has already been vaccinated on paper. Not as a teenager, but as a 56-year-old man!

This glaring error was detected on June 21, the day the BJP-ruled state claimed to have set a record of 17 lakh-plus doses during the daylong vaccination 'Maha Abhiyan' marking the International Yoga Day.

The recipient was Vedant Dangre of Bhopal. "At 7.27 pm on June 21 I got a message on my phone saying that my teenaged son has been vaccinated. I was shocked because the country is yet to start vaccinating those below 18," Vedant's father Rajat Dangre told this daily on Tuesday.

There was more surprise in store. "The message read that my son was 56," said Rajat. He is particularly concerned about his son (who is specially-abled) since he is already being shown vaccinated officially. "That means he won't be able to get the benefit of two doses when vaccination for children starts. When I downloaded the certificate from the official link, it showed that the document of my son's bank account (opened a couple of months ago while applying for disabled person pension) was used in the vaccination certificate," says Rajat. He has tried to get this addressed at all places, from the ward office of Bhopal Municipal Corporation to health department staff, but this is yet to be corrected.

In another part of Bhopal, Nuzhat Salim, a 46-year-old, too got a message from the government at 10.57 am on June 21 informing her she had been vaccinated. "I'm concerned how I'll get both doses in future after I've already been shown as vaccinated."

In Satna district, middle-aged educationist Chainendra Pandey, got not one, but four messages in five minutes on June 24, informing him about vaccination of three people whom he didn't even know.

Madhya Pradesh's medical education minister Vishwas Sarang refused to acknowledge this. "Nothing of the sort has happened," he maintained.

Covid cases among kids new concern in Assam

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Guwahati

CONCERNED over an alarming rise in infection among children, the Assam government has advised Covid-19 positive parents to opt for institutional quarantine instead of home quarantine to keep children protected against the deadly virus.

From April 1 to June 26 this year, total number of Covid-infected persons in the state was 2,80,504. This included 34,606 children up to the age of 18 years. Further analysis showed that 5,755 of these children were less than five and 28,851 between 6-18 years.

Official sources said during this period, the state recorded 34 deaths among children. Many of them had comorbidities like congenital diseases (heart, kidney, rare malformations etc), especially those less than five years.

According to reliable sources, during the ongoing Assam Community Surveillance Program Phase 3, many children staying with Covid positive parents or guardians, who had opted for home isolation, subsequently tested positive. They said the health department is strictly following guidelines issued by the Centre on pediatric Covid management and has taken steps to address and manage the infection among the vulnerable age groups.

APRIL 1 TO JUNE 26
TOTAL CASES	2,80,504
UNDER 5	5,755
6-18	28,851
DEATHS UNDER 18	34

"Establishment of Covid pediatric ICUs at all medical colleges and district hospitals are at an advanced stage. Over 5,000 healthcare workers, including doctors, nurses and paramedical staff, have been trained and are dealing with patients so that we can save maximum lives. A total of 108 ambulances have also been trained to transport infected children with appropriate care," sources said.

Meanwhile, 12 Covid-19 patients passed away at Gauhati Medical College and Hospital in the last 24 hours. Nine were admitted to the ICU. Hospital authorities said the oxygen saturation level of these patients was very low at the time of admission and their condition was critical. None of them had been vaccinated for Covid either.

Panel instructs Facebook and Google to follow rules

MANISH ANAND @ New Delhi

THE Parliamentary standing committee on Information and Technology on Tuesday asked Google and Facebook to follow the Indian laws, while telling their representatives that the security of citizens is priority.

After summoning the representatives of Twitter, the committee headed by Congress MP Shashi Tharoor called Facebook and Google for a session, which turned out to be a briefing meeting, with the members patiently hearing the technological aspects of the two tech giants.

The panel secretariat will also be writing to Twitter for explanations about the basis on which the accounts of Tharoor and Union IT Minister Ravi Shankar Prasad were suspended. Prasad's account was suspended for an hour purportedly on account of the copyright violations.

"Google gave statistical report about actions taken against contents which violate its policies, including removing and deleting videos and comments on its YouTube platform," sources said. The panel told the two social media giants they have to conform to Indian rules. The panel grilled the representatives of the two about "end to end encryption and origin of contents".

"Unlike the previous meeting with the Twitter representative, which was much heated, Tuesday's session was more focused, with the members showing interests in understanding the technical aspects," sources added.

Sikh leaders seek anti-conversion law

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

A delegation of Sikh leaders met Minister of State (Home) G Kishan Reddy on Tuesday to discuss the alleged forced conversion and wedding of Sikh women in Jammu and Kashmir. The delegation comprising BJP spokesperson and former BJP MLA from Delhi's Rajinder Nagar RP Singh, Jago Party president Manjit Singh GK and others submitted a memorandum seeking a strong anti-conversion law.

After meeting the Sikh leaders, Reddy said: "Forced conversion and wedding of Sikh girls in Kashmir is wrong and the delegation has submitted a memorandum. I will discuss this with the Union Home Minister regarding the action that needs to be taken."

The meeting took place less than 24 hours after members of the Sikh community staged protests in parts of Jammu and Kashmir. The Delhi Sikh Gurdwara Management Committee (DSGMC) also took part in the demonstrations. President of DSGMC, Manjinder Singh Sirsa said a delegation is likely to take up the matter with Union Home Minister Amit Shah soon.

Earlier, Shah had also assured to meet these leaders to discuss the issue of religious conversion and possible action against those found guilty. The Sikh leaders said they had faith in Prime Minister Narendra Modi as he had been working towards normalisation in Jammu and Kashmir.

On Monday, a massive protest was staged at J&K House in New Delhi. Shiromani Akali Dal leader and president of DSGMC, Sirsa met J&K LG Manoj Sinha on Monday to discuss the matter. Sirsa handed over a memorandum, demanding a minority commission in Jammu and Kashmir and implementation of the inter-religious marriage act.

District Commissioner Pandurang Pole, IGP (Kashmir) Vijay Kumar and SSP (Srinagar) Sandeep Chaudhary attended the meeting.

No request on Covishield: EU

New Delhi: European Medicines Agency (EMA), regulatory body for the European Union (EU), on Tuesday said it is yet to receive an approval request from Serum Institute of India for emergency use of Covishield. The EMA stated it will examine any such request when received, as per its procedures, said an EU official. It was added that EMA does not investigate new drugs on its own, unless asked by the relevant companies. However, the official said that the EU's green pass is not a precondition to travel within the region.

Vax drive on agenda, PM Modi to chair council of ministers' meeting today

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

PRIME Minister Narendra Modi will chair a meeting of the council of ministers on Wednesday. The Prime Minister, along with senior ministers and the BJP's national president J P Nadda, have held a number of meetings recently to review the performance of several ministries.

While the meeting will take place amid the build-up of speculation of likely expansion and reshuffle of the council of ministers, the Prime Minister is likely to ask the ministers to step up their efforts in the Covid-19 vaccination drive, including dealing with rumours and misgivings about taking the vaccines.

It will be a virtual meeting, sources said, adding that the government is also bracing for the upcoming Monsoon session of Parliament, which is likely to be held for a month, beginning third week of July.

While the meeting of the council of ministers will be held in the evening, the Cabinet will also meet on Wednesday morning. Sources said that the government being preoccupied with measures to deal with the Covid-19 pandemic, there could be sharing of the current status and the future roadmap with the ministers so as to allow them to effectively deal with the perception management in their respective areas of influence.

The BJP chief had also hosted a few senior Union ministers on Saturday at the party headquarters, with focus being the government to deliver on certain challenges so that the party could brace for the Assembly elections coming up next year.

15K incidents of Bengal post-poll violence: Report

Centre vows action after fact-finding team says 25 killed and 7,000 women molested

Former CJ of Sikkim HC Permod Kohli briefs the media in New Delhi | PARVEEN NEGI

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

THERE were 15,000 incidents of post-poll violence in West Bengal in which 25 people were killed and 7,000 women were molested, according to a fact-finding report of the civil society group — Call for Justice — headed by former Chief Justice of Sikkim High Court Justice (Retd) Permod Kohli.

The report on post-poll violence was submitted on Tuesday to the Centre, which assured that it would take action in the matter. Union Minister of State for Home G Kishan Reddy referred to the report and said the magnitude and reach of the post-poll violence touched many villages and towns all across West Bengal simultaneously beginning the night of May 2 when the results of the assembly elections were declared.

"This is a clear indication that most of the incidents are not sporadic but premeditated, organised and conspiratorial," the report stated. The five-member team included two retired IAS and one IPS officers.

The civil society group said the report was prepared after the five-member team visited Bengal and met a cross-section of people there. Reddy said that the Home Ministry will study the report and will try to implement its recommendations. Citing the report, the junior home minister said 16 districts of the state were affected by the post-poll violence.

"The report said due to the post-poll violence, many people have left their homes in West Bengal and had taken shelter in Assam, Jharkhand and Odisha," he said. According to the report, some of the hardened criminals, mafia dons and criminal gangs who were already in police records allegedly "led and carried the deadly attacks unhindered, (which) reveals that there is clear political patronage even before the elections and same being used to silence the political rivals".

The houses of some people were completely burned and destroyed and they were not even allowed to work, the report stated. The connecting bridge to a village that voted for a particular party was demolished. Their water connection has been snatched, claimed the report. The report claimed the incidents of targeted destruction and vandalisation of properties, residential and commercial, have the sole purpose to deprive people of their livelihood and choke them economically.

Report should be placed before SC, says team

The team suggested that the report should be placed before the SC which may consider forming a SIT promptly for a fair probe. The Centre should initiate disciplinary proceedings on delinquent officers who failed to discharge their duties, the team suggested

Ambedkar memorial centre in UP only for poll gains: Oppn

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Lucknow

JUST an hour after President Ram Nath Kovind laid the foundation stone for Dr Bhim Rao Ambedkar Memorial and Cultural Centre in Lucknow on Tuesday, politics erupted over the centre in UP, where assembly polls are slated early next year with the BSP accusing the ruling BJP of remembering the Bharat Ratna only for electoral gains.

"The BSP isn't against any memorial or centre named after Dr Ambedkar, but getting such events done just for electoral gains amounts to deception...After continuously committing atrocities against countless followers of Dr Ambedkar, the present UP government is getting the foundation stone of a memorial-centre laid. It's nothing but drama. It's not only the BJP government but other parties, including Samajwadi Party and Congress, too, which are indulging in such acts of deception and drama," BSP supremo Mayawati tweeted.

The SP, too, went on an attack mode on the issue. "After being in power for four-and-a-half years, the BJP is remembering Dr Ambedkar when the elections are close. But the bitter reality is that maximum cases of atrocities against the Scheduled Castes have happened in this BJP regime, including the horrific Hathras incident," party spokesperson Vivek Silas said. Responding to the criticism, minister Swami Prasad Maurya said, "It's surprising that instead of praising the foundation stone laying ceremony of the memorial and cultural centre (which will further Ambedkar's vision) she is criticising it. How can she forget that it's during the Modi government that five places connected with Dr Ambedkar's life are being developed as Panch Teerths (Five Pilgrimages)."

'Implement 'one nation, one ration card' by July 31'

THE bench also directed all states to implement the 'one nation, one ration card scheme' by July 31, while asking the Centre to provide dry ration for free distribution among migrant workers till the Covid situation stabilises, adding the government cannot abdicate its duty to feed those who do not have ration cards. The court directed the Centre and the States to ensure that none among the estimated 38 crore migrant workers goes hungry.

Dwelling on the right to food, the court said: "The Constitution of India does not have any explicit provision regarding the right to food. The fundamental right to life enshrined in Article 21 of the Constitution may be interpreted to include the right to live with human dignity, which may include the right to food."

Restore Article 370 or grant statehood to Ladakh, Kargil leaders tell Centre

FAYAZ WANI @Srinagar

The Kargil Democratic Alliance (KDA), which comprises political and religious leaders, civil society members and traders, will participate in the July 1 dialogue with Centre on two-point agenda — restore Articles 370 and 35A or grant statehood with legislature to Ladakh Union Territory. The KDA has been invited for talks by Minister of State for Home G K Reddy in New Delhi.

"We have received the invitation and 11 members of the KDA will be attending the meeting," KDA co-chairperson and former MLA Asgar Ali Karbalai told this newspaper.

"We will demand restoration of Articles 370 and 35A. In case they say the matter is sub judice as the abrogation of J&K's special status has been challenged in Supreme Court, we will demand granting of full statehood with the legislature to Ladakh."

Karbalai said the alliance would be demanding statehood on the pattern of Sikkim.

"Sikkim was given statehood with a legislature in 1975. At that time, its population was 2.50 lakh while we have more than 3 lakh," he said. In terms of size also, Ladakh, with over 80,000 sq kms of area, is bigger than Sikkim which has about 7,000 sq km area.

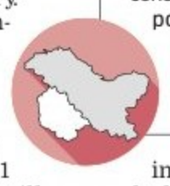
"Besides, we are more strategically located. On one side, we have Pakistan and on the other side China. Since Ladakh is more strategically located, it should be given full statehood with a legislature to make its own laws," the KDA leader said.

Asked if they would also seek constitutional safeguards for Ladakh, Karbalai said, "If statehood with a legislature is granted, then we can make laws to reserve jobs for locals and protect land rights of the local population. We can make laws to protect our culture and environment."

The Kargil leaders' talks with the Centre comes days after the July 24 All-Party Meeting convened by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, where the Centre came up with a roadmap forJ&K — delimitation, elections and then restoration of statehood.

Delimitation panel to meet today

The delimitation commission tasked with redrawing parliamentary and assembly constituencies in J&K is likely to hold an internal meeting on Wednesday to finalise its plans on consultations with political parties soon. The commission was appointed in February last year



Two militants were killed in an encounter in Srinagar's Maloora | ZAHOOR PUNJABI

Militants warned against targeting off-duty cops

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Srinagar

AFTER three off-duty policemen, including a CID inspector Parvez Ahmad Dar, were killed by militants within 10 days in the Valley, IGP Kashmir Vijay Kumar on Tuesday warned militants against incurring the wrath of the police and said they know how to counter such attacks.

"The cops are locals, and they have to live with their families. We cannot keep them in camps like the personnel of other security forces. They become soft targets,' Kumar told reporters at a press conference in Srinagar.

"I have 24 years of experience and we know how to counter it. I advise the militants not to get involved in these acts," he said. According to the IGP, the CID inspector had gone to a mosque to offer namaz and on his way, two militants shot him from behind. "He was shot dead near the mosque and a video of the incident has been seen by everybody. He was not part of the Special Operations Group (SOG) or any anti-militancy squad... Just to create fear psychosis among the people, militants are targeting innocent people," he said.

Referring to the killing of SPO Fayaz Ahmad, his wife and their daughter in Pulwama district on Sunday evening, the IGP said two Jaish militants involved in the killing have been identified.

The militants knocked at the door of ailing Ahmad and started thrashing him. His wife Raja Begum and daughter Rafia, 22, made an unsuccessful bid to save him as the terrorists started spraying bullets on him. In the process, Begum and Rafia were injured and died at a hospital.

Not-for-profit hospitals need govt support: NITI Aayog

NEW DELHI: The NITI Aayog called for strengthening not-for-profit hospitals, with measures like 100% income tax exemption for donations, fast release of dues from government schemes, grants, and allowing them to utilize primary health care (PHC) infrastructure to take health care to the rural parts of the country.

In a study report released on Tuesday, the Niti Aayog found there's a growing disparity between hospitalisation cases between for-profit and not-for-profit hospitals. Not for profit hospitals are run by charitable or faith based institutions, which charge patients to the extent of meeting their expenses, which the Niti Aayog report stated are kept under strict control by even "scavenging the medical equipment". "The not-for-profit hospitals currently account for only a miniscule share of hospitalization cases. The burden of healthcare provision shifts to private hospitals, which generally offer healthcare at a higher cost to the patient. For-profit hospitals account for 23.3% of treated ailments and not-for-profit hospitals account for only 1.1 per cent of treated ailments as of June 2018," it stated, e noting that public hospitals offering healthcare at negligible cost are overstretched.

It also stated that in terms of hospitalization cases the for-profit hospitals account for 55.3 per cent of in-patients, while the not-for-profit hospitals account for only 2.7% of in-patients in the country. The think tank added that the not-for-profit hospitals are largely concentrated in western, southern and the Northeast India. ENS

Deshmukh again fails to appear before ED, urges to record statement online

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @Mumbai

FORMER Maharashtra home minister Anil Deshmukh refused to appear before the Enforcement Directorate (ED) on Tuesday in connection with a money-laundering case, citing Covid-19 not followed in the agency office and his old age.

Deshmukh, however, in his letter, through his lawyer Inderpal Singh, to the ED asked the agency to take his statement through a virtual interaction on a day suitable. He also told the ED that he is entitled the get a copy of the Enforcement Case Information Report and other documents from it, Deshmukh said.

"I have already exposed my person to some extent on June 25, in my long interaction with you spanning over several hours during the course of search and recording of my statement. I will furnish all information and any document that you may require once I am aware of the contents and details thereof. The copy of ECIR is not available with me, I am handicapped and incapacitated to furnish the documents as of now," he added.

"I am a septuagenarian, about 72 year of age, and suffering from various co-morbidities, including hypertension and cardiac problems," he mentioned in the letter.

The ED had asked the NCP leader to appear before it at 11 am on Tuesday, after he did not depose before the investigating officer here on Saturday.

Deshmukh had on Saturday sought a fresh date for appearance in the case related to an alleged multi-crore bribery-cum-extortion racket that led to his resignation from the post of home minister in April.

Deshmukh's lawyer said they were cooperating with the probe agency. The ED on Saturday arrested Deshmukh's personal secretary Sanjeev Palande and personal assistant Kundan Shinde after it raided against them and the NCP leader in Mumbai and Nagpur.

Assam girl steals limelight at Ottawa film festival

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @Guwahati

THE hard work that this Assamese filmmaker put in while hunting for a rustic face for his movie "Bridge" has finally paid off. The feature film, directed by Kripal Kalita, fetched its lead actress Shiva Rani Kalita the best actress award at the prestigious Ottawa 4th Indian Film Festival Awards.

Screened at 28 international film festivals, including the Indian Panorama category for the 51st International Film Festival of India, the film shows the complex relationship between the destructive Brahmaputra and the flood-ravaged villagers who rebuild their houses on the banks of the mighty river that washed away their homes.

"The film also throws light on the socio-economic condition of people. The annual floods are our biggest problem that impedes development. Since the village does not have a bridge, nobody comes to marry its girls," Kripal said.

He said he looked for the qualities of a village girl in the lead actress. "We discovered her from among 300 girls," Kripal said. After her parents died in the floods in the movie, it fell on Jonaki to take care of her brother's education. This is so real in Assam's flood-affected areas, he said.

ISRAEL new foreign minister, and alternate prime minister, Yair Lapid opened the Jewish state's first embassy in the Gulf during a trip to the United Arab Emirates on Tuesday after countries normalised ties last year.

"The opening of the Israeli Embassy in Abu Dhabi with the Emirati Minister of Culture and Youth," he tweeted with a photo of himself and UAE minister Noura al-Kaabi cutting a ribbon in the blue and white of the Israeli flag.

Israeli ministers have previously visited the UAE, but newly appointed Lapid is the most senior Israeli to make the trip, and the first to travel on an official mission.

"Israel wants peace with its neighbours. With all its neighbours. We aren't going anywhere. The Middle East is our home. We're here to stay. We call on all the countries of the region to recognise that. And to come talk to us," Lapid said during the opening ceremony.

Since their US-brokered normalisation agreement was announced in August last year, Israel and the UAE have signed a raft of deals ranging from tourism to aviation and financial services. During his visit, Lapid will also inaugurate a consulate in Dubai. Lapid's trip comes nearly a year after the nations moved to normalise ties, and follows a string of visits by Israeli officials that were planned then scrapped over issues including the Covid pandemic and diplomatic scuffles.

In March, a planned official visit by Israel's then-prime minister Benjamin Netanyahu was cancelled due to a "dispute" with Jordan over the use of its airspace, according to Israeli officials.

Netanyahu, replaced as prime minister by Jewish nationalist Naftali Bennett in a coalition government cobbled together by Lapid weeks ago, had already postponed a February visit to the UAE and Bahrain over coronavirus travel restrictions.

According to the Jerusalem Post daily, Netanyahu sought to prevent his foreign minister Gabi Ashkenazi from making an official visit to the UAE, to keep him from stealing the spotlight ahead of March elections.

In August 2020, former White House senior adviser Jared Kushner and Israeli national security advisor Meir Ben-Shabbat made history by flying to Abu Dhabi on an El Al plane from Israel.

That was feted by both sides as a breakthrough in efforts for peace in the Middle East, marked by the El Al jet touching down adorned with the word "peace" in English, Arabic and Hebrew.

Palestine has condemned the normalisation accords Israel struck with the UAE, followed by deals with Bahrain, Morocco and Sudan. The deals break with years of Arab League policy of no truck with Israel until it makes peace with the Palestinians. AFP

Jewish settlers agree to leave West Bank outpost

JERUSALEM

JEWISH settlers agreed to leave a new outpost in the occupied West Bank that has stirred weeks of Palestinian protests following a deal with Israel's government, officials said.

Under the agreement, confirmed by settler leaders and the interior ministry, the settlers will leave the Eviatar outpost within days but their mobile homes will remain and Israeli troops will establish a base in the area.

According to a statement from regional settler leader Yossi Dagan, the defence ministry has agreed to study land claims to assess the prospect of a future recognised settlement. Dagan said the agreement had been approved by Prime Minister Naftali Bennett, Defence Minister Benny Gantz and Interior Minister Ayelet Shaked.

About 50 Jewish families moved to Eviatar last month, erecting huts, tents and caravans — in defiance of international and Israeli law — on land near Nablus in the occupied West Bank, which Palestinians claim for a future state.

Palestinians in the nearby community of Beita have responded with night-time protests, flashing horns, burning tyres and shining laser beams to keep the settlers awake.

Those protests continued on Monday when they directed green light beams towards Jewish settler homes and hoisted Palestinian flags.

Moussa Hamayel, of the Beita municipality, said Palestinian community had "completely rejected" the purported compromise. Israeli troops have killed four Palestinians including a teenager in unrest sparked by the protests. AFP

Japan's 'Black Widow' loses final appeal in SC

TOKYO

A JAPANESE woman dubbed the "Black Widow" who used cyanide to kill her elderly lovers had her final appeal against the death sentence rejected by the country's top court, local media said.

Chisako Kakehi, 74, was sentenced to death by hanging in 2017 for the murder of three men — including a husband — and the attempted murder of another, in a case that gripped Japan. Two years ago, a high court dismissed an appeal by the serial killer who pocketed millions in insurance payouts and inheritance, drawing comparisons in the media with the spider that poisons its mate after copulation.

On Tuesday, Supreme Court presiding judge Yuko Miyazaki said "the death sentence is unavoidable" because Kakehi's "criminal responsibility is extremely grave", public broadcaster NHK reported.

"She used cyanide on the men after making them trust her as a life partner. It's a calculated, cruel crime based on a strong intent of murder," Miyazaki said.

When contacted by AFP, officials at the top court could not immediately confirm the reports.

The defence lawyers had claimed Kakehi was incapable of going through trials due to dementia, and she told Yomiuri TV before the ruling that she "did not want to die".

Kakehi reportedly amassed one billion yen ($9 million) in payouts over 10 years, but subsequently lost most of the fortune through unsuccessful financial trading.

She had relationships primarily with elderly or ill men -- meeting some through dating agencies, where she reportedly stipulated that prospective partners should be wealthy and childless. AFP

G20 talks urge need for more global cooperation post Covid

MATERA, ITALY

G20 MINISTERS led by the United States said on Tuesday that the coronavirus pandemic showed the need for greater global cooperation, as African nations sought help to develop their medical infrastructure.

In a sharp reversal from the previous US administration, Secretary of State Antony Blinken emphasised the need for multilateral institutions as foreign ministers from the Group of 20 major economies met in the ancient Italian city of Matera.

"Multilateral cooperation will be key to our collective ability to stop this global health crisis," said Blinken, winding down a week-long trip to Europe. "That's also true for the work we must do to strengthen global health security moving forward so we can detect, prevent and respond better to future emergencies."

Blinken pointed to US contributions to COVAX, the UN-backed initiative that aims to vaccinate low-income countries, including President Joe Biden's promise to provide 500 million Pfizer doses.

Italian Foreign Minister Luigi Di Maio, the host of the talks, said that the pandemic, which has hit his country particularly hard, exposed global vulnerabilities.

"Multi-lateralism and cooperation are fundamental in responding to global challenges," he said.

Foreign Minister Christophe Lutundula of the Democratic Republic of Congo, participating as part of an Italian push to involve African nations in G20 talks, warned that coronavirus was far from over in his continent and called for urgent measures.

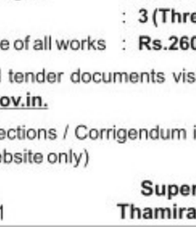
In addition to immediate aid, he called for the G20 to back the capacity of developing countries to produce vaccines themselves and to help launch a continent-wide agency that will encourage scientific cooperation.

The G20 must help "concretely and in detail so we move beyond speeches to urgent action on the ground," he said. "This will help African countries revive their economies for the greater good of the international community," he said. AFP

South Africa ex-prez Zuma gets 15-month jail term for contempt

JOHANNESBURG

SOUTH Africa's former president Jacob Zuma was on Tuesday sentenced to 15 months in prison by the apex court which found him guilty of contempt after he failed to appear before an inquiry probing wide-ranging allegations of corruption during his tenure.



Zuma, 79, is accused of enabling the plunder of state coffers during his nearly nine-year stay in office from 2009 to 2018.

Zuma was not in court for the ruling and has been given five days to hand himself in at a police station. If he fails to do that the police minister must order his arrest.

In a strongly worded majority judgment handed down on Tuesday morning by Justice Sisi Khampepe of the Constitutional Court, she described Zuma's statements as "outlandish" and 'intolerable'.

"The Constitutional Court can do nothing but conclude that Mr Zuma is guilty of the crime of contempt of court," judge Khampepe said.

The court also said that the sentence could not be suspended. The Commission of Enquiry, which is investigation allegations of corruption and bribery at state and parastatal institutions, had asked that Zuma be sent to prison for two years. Zuma has repeatedly said that he would rather go to jail than cooperate with the Commission. PTI

GoAir may choose non-IPO route for funds

In a major setback, the process to roll out the airline's planned IPO has been halted by SEBI for up to 90 days

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

WITH its IPO possibly delayed by a few months, struggling airline GoAir may have to look at alternative routes to raise funds. The airline's net balance was almost negligible as of April 2021 and it had a debt of ₹2,956 crore. "This could make things difficult as it was relying heavily on the IPO proceedings to service its borrowings," said an aviation sector analyst, requesting anonymity.

He added that like other airlines, GoAir was gasping for funds to survive the pandemic. "While IndiGo, despite being cash rich, is raising ₹3,000 crore as part of a qualified institutional placement and SpiceJet is having a board meeting on Wednesday to discuss fundraising plans, GoAir will have to find other ways as time is running out," he said.

When asked about the options available for the Mumbai-based carrier to raise fresh capital, he noted that raising fresh loans can be difficult as banks are cutting exposure to this sector. "However, it is not impossible since promoter Wadia Group has reputed businesses. The airline can also seek funds from its promoters, make an inter-corporate deposit, or get external investors. There are many ways a private company can raise money," he pointed out.

In a major setback, market regulator SEBI halted GoAir's IPO process by up to 90 days on Monday. The notification did not specify any reason for the temporary hold; but only showed that GoAir's IPO application submitted has been "kept in abeyance". According to reports, the delay has been caused by the regulator's investigations into irregularities related Bombay Dyeing, another company owned by the Wadia Group. Share prices of Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Company fell over 4 per cent on Tuesday to ₹87.15.

GoAir, which recently branded itself as "Go First" had filed papers for an initial share sale worth ₹3,600 crore in May. The proceeds will be mainly used by the airline to pay debt, about ₹2,956 crore as on April 19, 2021. It also intends to repay dues of ₹254.93 crore to Indian Oil Corporation for fuel supplied.

According to its draft red herring prospectus (DRHP), GoAir has been a loss-making company for quite sometime. It has a negative net worth of ₹1,962 crore and at the end of December 2020, the company had a miniscule cash balance of just ₹11.6 crore.

ICRA estimates that Indian airlines will incur collective net losses of about ₹21,000 crore in FY22 and require ₹37,000 crore extra funding in FY23.

WTO DISPUTE INITIATED AGAINST AUSTRALIAN DUTIES

China has initiated a dispute at the World Trade Organisation (WTO) over Australian duties imposed on imports of wind towers, deep drawn stainless steel sinks, and railway wheels from China, the WTO said on Tuesday, adding that China's request has been circulated to its members on Tuesday. On Monday, the WTO had confirmed that Australia has filed a formal complaint over China's duties on bottled wine imports. Australia's relations with China have worsened since Canberra called for an international inquiry into the origins of Covid-19, which was first reported in China in late 2019. This is the second dispute that Australia has launched at WTO against China. The first dispute, launched in December, concerns China's barley import duties and the WTO is currently looking into the case.

THAILAND

CENTRAL BANK TO ADJUST FOREX RULES

Thailand's central bank is considering adjusting the foreign exchange regulatory framework to help the economy better cope with volatility, officials said on Tuesday, as the baht hit a more than 13-month low against the US dollar. These adjustments include reducing forex limitations, facilitating hedging, and removing a requirement of supporting documents for normal transactions, it added. The central bank is considering that normal transactions of more than $200,000 may not need supporting documents. Earlier measures introduced late last year to encourage capital outflows appear to have been quite successful, with Thai investments overseas hitting a record $17.8 billion between the final quarter of 2020 and May. Such investments had amounted on average to around $3.1 billion per year during the 2010-2019 period.

JAPAN

RETAIL SALES RISE, BUT OVERALL TREND STILL SOFT

Japanese retail sales beat expectations in May as households loosened their purse strings, but the underlying trend in consumption remains hostage to Covid-19-linked pressures and suggest that economic recovery will take time to gather steam. Retail sales jumped 8.2% in May over last year, the third straight month of growth, government data showed. Depsite the better-than-expected rise in retail sales, the jump was not strong enough to mark a definite shift towards a brigher outlook for spending conditions. With Tokyo set to host the Olympic Games next month, analysts expect that Japan's economy will barely grow in the second quarter after prologned coronavirus emergency curbs hurt growth outlook. As major economies like the US rebound strongly, Japan's weak growth rate is forcing poilcymakers to take supportive measures alongside a massive stimulus to boost demand.

Govt confident on fiscal deficit, rules out extra borrowing

ANURADHA SHUKLA @ New Delhi

THE finance ministry has ruled out any fresh borrowing for the stimulus package announced on Manday, claiming that it will have no impact on India's fiscal roadmap this year.

"There will be no deviation from the borrowing target announced by the ministry. The stimulus package is well within the anticipated expenditure and was already accounted for in the budget," a senior official told this publication.

The official explained that even though no one anticipated the severity of the second wave, there was a contingency fund earmarked for this purpose in the budget. "This year's budget was very meticulously planned. While we were conservative in our estimate regarding the revenue targets, sudden expenditure on account of the second wave was not unforseen. Experts are talking about a third wave. But we are better prepared and, in the present context, this will not impact our fiscal path, as predicted by many agencies," the official pointed out.

The government had estimated a fiscal deficit of 6.8 per cent for the year and kept its gross market borrowing at ₹12.05 lakh crore. However, given the second wave, many agencies including Nomura and Barclays see the gap widening to more than 7% of GDP for the current financial year. Even Care Ratings has forecast a wider fiscal deficit at 7.8%.

Finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman had, on Monday, announced several measures, including ₹1.5 lakh-crore of additional credit for small businesses, more funds for the healthcare sector, loans to tourism agencies and guides, and a waiver of visa fees, as part of a stimulus package for sectors hit hard by Covid-19.

While the government claimed that the package, which mostly included government guarantees, total up to ₹6.29 lakh crore together with previous packages, economists claim that its fiscal impact will be limited.

SEBI empowers Independent Dirs, rolls out Accredited Investor concept

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

AS the role of independent directors come in for criticism for their failure in detecting and preventing corporate frauds and promoter mismanagement, the Board of the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) on Tuesday gave its nod to a slew of changes that will ensure the independence and effectiveness of these directors.

According to the new changes, the appointment, re-appointment, and removal of independent directors in a listed company will be done through a special resolution of shareholders. In this special resolution, the number of votes in favour of the resolution should be at least three times that of those against the resolution. This will ensure that independent directors are not removed or appointed at the whims and fancy of the promoters.

Besides, the new regulations require that the process of selecting independent directors should be transparent and fully elaborated. The panel selecting the directors should also disclose the skills required for an independent director and how a particular candidate fits into that skillset.

Skin-in-the-game rules tightened for AMC

The SEBI board approved an amendment that mandates AMCs with mutual funds to provide for the skin-in-the-game based on the risk associated with the concerned scheme

The SEBI board also tightened skin-in-the-game rules for mutual fund companies. It approved an amendment to provide for the investment of a minimum amount as 'skin-in-the-game' in Mutual Fund (MF) schemes by Asset Management Companies (AMCs) based on the risk associated with the scheme, instead of the current requirement of one per cent of the amount raised in New Fund Offer or an amount of ₹50 lakh, whichever is less.

The board also gave its nod to a proposal to introduce 'Accredited Investors', a class of (individual, HuFs, partnership firms, etc) investors who may be considered as well informed or well advised about investment products. These investors would have flexibility in terms of investing in unlisted securities, the mode of fee payments to advisers, minimum amount of investment, etc.

The board also announced a number of measures to remove operational challenges in raising funds in the debt market thus enabling the deepening of the bond market.

Issuers with less than three years of existence can now tap the bond markets. The requirement of a minimum tenure of three years for the public issuance of Non-convertible redeemable preference securities (NCRPS) has been removed. Such issuers are now also not required to have a minimum rating of AA-.

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

GERMAN auto component maker ZF said on Tuesday that it would invest 200 million euros into its India operations over the next five years to hasten growth. The company will set up a new manufacturing facility in Chennai and increase the utilization of its other facilities in India, it added.

This development comes days after the ZF Group divested its shareholding of 49 per cent in Brakes India to meet the Anti-Trust guidelines set by the Competition Commission of India, post the takeover of CV component maker WABCO.

Govts must watch out for hidden debt to avoid financial crisis

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

PUBLIC sector lenders as well as companies in South Asian economies, including India, are at the centre of a rising debt wave and sizable hidden liabilities that could lead to a financial crisis, the World Bank warned on Tuesday.

A key risk for India is the government's guarantees for debt raised by PSUs for public-private partnership (PPP) infrastructure projects.

State-owned commercial banks, according to anecdotal evidence, focus more on meeting lending quotas for the volume of extended credit than they focus on the quality of project screening and underwriting. These quotas are more easily met by serving larger firms—including state-run entities implicitly backed by a government guarantee—than riskier SMEs. However, the Covid-19 pandemic may lead to the cancellation of many projects and the estimated fiscal cost from early termination over the remainder of contract periods of PPPs ranges between $9.7 billion to $18.5billion in India, it said.

Infrastructure public-private partnerships are no free lunch. They create liabilities for governments, including contingent (hidden) ones

World Bank

"Infrastructure public-private partnerships are no free lunch. They create liabilities for governments, including contingent (hidden) ones. To share risk appropriately between the public and private parties, governments tend to provide explicit guarantees to the private party, such as revenue or credit guarantees. At the center of the PPP approach rests a trade-off between the efficiency of execution and the efficiency of financing," the World Bank added.

For instance, the annual funding of the National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) is approved by the government through Union Budgets. The Ministry of Finance covers full debt service and payment obligations throughout the PPP model, but such liabilities are not explicitly stated on the government's balance sheet—and thus become part of the "hidden debt," the World Bank said in its report.

'NTPC may launch IPO for RE unit'

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Chennai

STATE-run power producer NTPC Ltd. is considering an initial public offering (IPO) of its newest subsidiary NTPC Renewable Energy Ltd. in an effort to raise capital that will fund its ambitious clean energy targets. The company has set itself a goal of achieving 60 GW of installed renewable energy capacity by 2032.

Speaking about the company's clean energy plans at a virtual event on Tuesday, NTPC's chairman and managing director Gurdeep Singh said that NTPC was not just looking at one single avenue to mobilise funds. "We should not focus on one way of raising funds. We want to soon go to public for raising funds," he said, noting that NTPC would add 7-8 GW of renewable energy capacity every year. Singh pointed out that over the past five years, NTPC has not added any thermal capacities.

NTPC had, only last October, incorporated a new wholly-owned subsidiary called NTPC Renewable Energy Ltd to push forward its clean energy businesses. The RE unit currently has three projects under development for a cumulative capacity creation of 670 MW. All three are solar facilities: one each at Bhensada (320 MW) and Chhattargarh (150 MW) in Rajasthan, and another at Surendranagar (200 MW), Gujarat.

This May, NTPC RE Ltd also inked a power purchase agreement (PPA) with Gujarat Urja Vikas Nigam Ltd to sell electricity from its solar projects. The unit had said that with this, its total capacity under Tariff-based Competitive bidding (TBCB) has risen to 1.4 GW. It has also been alloted land in the Rann of Kutch by the Gujarat government for the development of a 4,750 MW solar power park.

AWS clinches multi-year deal with Axis Bank

BISMAH MALIK @ Bengaluru

AMAZON Web Services (AWS) has clinched a multi-year contract for transforming the digital operations of India's third largest private lender Axis Bank. This is AWS' largest such contract so far in India's Banking, Finance Services, and Insurance sector (BFSI). AWS has insurance major Bajaj Allianz, RBL Bank, and HDFC Standard Life as its other big clients in the sector which saw massive cloud adoption, core operations digitization, and enhancement in the real time customer engagement after the outbreak of the pandemic.

Both Amazon and Axis Bank declined to divulge more details on the deal, including its size. The US-based tech giant is now pitted against IBM which counts State Bank of India and HDFC Bank as its major clients in the space. While India's traditional financial institutions had begun their digitisation efforts a few years ago, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has come down heavily on some banks for frequent outages in their internet banking services, mobile app crashes, and declined UPI transaction.

Analysts point out that partnerships with tech giants to help efficiently handle rising digital transactions, innovate on core processes, as well as build new products, have become imperative in the post-pandemic world.

Subrat Mohanty, Group Executive, Axis Bank told this publication that the deal will help address concerns which were earlier flagged by customers as well as the RBI. He noted that in the face of the increasing velocity of transactions, the BFSI industry has taken a very vocal approach here.

"While partnering with AWS, we aim to modernize our infrastructure. We realize that the speed of the ecosystem is much faster now with digital modes of payments like UPI, Fastag, etc, hence there is a requirement to build constant edge-scalable as well as resilient systems. We aim to transition 70% of our infrastructure and applications on the cloud," he pointed out.

For AWS, drawing big names for its cloud investments in India makes sense. Last year, it had announced an investment of $2.7 billion to build its second AWS cloud region in India in Telangana.

RBI between rock and a hard place, no rate hikes likely in FY22

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

CAUGHT between weak growth and inflation above the mandated band of 2-6 per cent, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has been left with little choice but to distance itself from an accommodative policy.

But, economists say that the start of policy normalisation will remain contingent on a sustained growth recovery, evidence of which is unlikely to be visible before the end of the current fiscal year. The central bank is expected to hike the repo rate only by the first quarter of next fiscal (April-June 2022).

"While a gradual recovery is again taking hold, growth remains far below potential, with the output gap still deeply negative. The transmission of past policy cuts is also still not complete. Our 'Taylor rule' estimates rule out rate hikes in FY22, and we see room for a repo rate hike only in Q1FY23," said Barclays' chief India economist Rahul Bajoria on Tuesday.

Currently, the repo rate stands at 4 per cent with the reverse repo rate at 3.35 per cent—the lowest repo rate since 2000.

The central bank has slashed repo rate by 115 basis points (bps) since the outbreak of the pandemic in March 2020 and has found itself in a bind every since. While the first lockdown constricted supply and demand for much of Q1 of the last fiscal, pushing the economy into a record 24.4 per cent contraction during April-June and causing full-year GDP to shrink 7.3 per cent, the second wave has crushed all-round demand and consumer confidence.

It is to be noted that after responding with deep rate cuts initially, the RBI has limited itself to using non-conventional tools to help growth. However, with the recent surge in retail inflation (at 6.3 per cent in May), there have been questions raised over this.

"Given this backdrop, we expect the central bank to maintain its accommodative stance, and to continue to rely on the government's supply-side measures to reign in price pressures, while at the same time confirming its commitment to anchoring medium-term inflation expectations," Bajoria added.

The ineffectiveness of the Centre's supply-side measures, an un-anchoring of inflation expectations leading to a wage-price spiral, and a return of pricing power are some of the key triggers that could force the RBI into rate action earlier than expected, he said. The brokerage expects inflation to be at 5.4 per cent for FY22.

Wrestling camp from July 3 ahead of cadet Worlds

FIROZ MIRZA @Chennai

MONTHS after suspending national camps due to the Covid-19 pandemic, the Wrestling Federation of India (WFI) — along with the Sports Authority of India (SAI) — has planned camps for wrestlers (boys and girls) selected for the Cadet World Championships. The camps will begin on July 3. Boys (both freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling) will assemble at SAI centre in Sonepat while the girls' camp will be held at SAI centre in Lucknow. The championships is slated to be held from July 19 to 25 in Budapest, Hungary.

"Selection trials to pick the teams were held in New Delhi on June 21. The gold medallist from each of the ten weight categories from all three styles were selected for the championships. The camp will also see participation from silver medallists of the trials," a WFI official told this daily.

June 25 was the deadline set for final entries by the local organising committee (Hungarian federation). The championships will begin with contests in the freestyle category followed by women's wrestling and Greco-Roman competitions. Indian wrestlers are expected to leave in batches. "The first batch is expected to leave on July 17," informed the official. Despite announcing the commencement date of the camps, the WFI has not apprised the wrestlers of formalities like Covid tests that they need to complete before entering the venue.

"The wrestlers have been asked to join the camp on July 3 but they have not been informed about RT-PCR tests and other precautionary measures, which have to be taken in the wake of the pandemic. We hope the clarifications come soon," said one of the coaches, whose ward was selected for the camp.

Meanwhile, all the participants have to present a certificate of negative RT-PCR test upon arrival in Budapest and later at the accreditation. As per the measures stated by the organising committee, a medical certificate should be issued to all athletes 10-14 days prior to competition.

Discus thrower Seema books Olympic berth

MARTIN JOSEPH @Kochi

THE final day of the inter-state athletics championship underway in Patiala belonged to veteran discus thrower Seema Punia who booked her place in the Tokyo Olympics with a throw of 63.72m on Tuesday. The Asian Games gold medallist secured direct qualification as the Olympic qualification mark is 63.50m. It will be the 37-year-old's fourth Olympics and she will be representing India alongside Kamalpreet Kaur in the discus throw event.

Meanwhile, the men's 4x400m team bagged gold in the final, even though their timing of 3:05.22s was well behind what they managed in the heats where they posted a timing of 3:01.89s. Sitting comfortably in 13th position in the World Athletics' Road to Tokyo rankings, they look on course to board the flight for Tokyo next month.

As far as the 4x400m women's team are concerned, they find themselves precariously placed. Even though the team bagged gold on the last day of the inter-state championship, they are currently placed 16th in the rankings and are uncomfortably placed for Tokyo berth.

Federer survives Mannarino scare

AFP @London

ROGER Federer survived a huge scare to reach the Wimbledon second round on Tuesday when French opponent Adrian Mannarino was forced to retire injured at the start of the fifth set.

Eight-time champion Federer was level at 6-4, 6-7 (3/7), 3-6, 6-2 when Mannarino called it quits after just one point in the decider. The Frenchman, celebrating his 33rd birthday, suffered a bad fall in the seventh game of the fourth set. Despite taking treatment from the trainer, he was hardly able to move and grimacing in pain had to retire.

Meanwhile, Australia's Ashleigh Barty overcame a mid-match wobble to reach the second round. Barty came through 6-1, 6-7 (1/7), 6-1 against Carla Suarez Navarro.

Venus Williams defeated Mihaela Buzarnescu of Romania 7-5, 4-6, 6-3.

B'luru golfer qualifies for Tokyo Oly

ENS @Bengaluru

BENGALURU golfer Aditi Ashok has qualified for the upcoming Tokyo Olympics, starting next month. The 23-year-old, who featured in Rio Olympics too, sealed her second consecutive Olympic appearance as she managed to qualify in 45th position in the latest women's final Olympic golf rankings released on Tuesday.

"I still think of @Rio 2016 like it was only yesterday. To have the honour of playing for India @OlympicGolf @Tokyo2020 is beyond exciting. I'm privileged to have the opportunity to represent my country & my sport at the games again," Aditi wrote on Twitter.

I had to prove myself once again: Archer Verma

AYANTAN CHOWDHURY @New Delhi

A couple of days have elapsed since Abhishek Verma clinched gold in compound section of the Archery World Cup in Paris. He is no stranger to climbing the dais to stand at the topmost step, with this being his second individual gold. However, this victory came under different circumstances.

The last time India's compound archers were part of a training camp was April 16, following which all non-Olympic camps were disbanded. Their last competitive outing was more than two years back. The only training they could manage in the last couple of months in India was all inside the confines of their homes due to the lockdown restrictions. Usually, such a build-up is not heard of prior to international meet.

Abhishek acknowledged the difficulties leading up to the triumph and revealed that there was a growing urge this time to show what he can do. "Usually when I participate in international events, I'm confident of winning a medal. But this was different as only after reaching Paris could all of us train. I've never been this nervous in a long time but also there was a fire burning inside me to prove myself all over again," he said.

And he proved himself with his third overall gold in World Cups. Full story: newindianexpress.com

SWEETZERLAND

One of the greatest nights of tournament football played itself out thanks to improbable goals, amazing chaos, and a stunning comeback at Bucharest. Here's a blow-by-blow account of Round of 16 match between Switzerland and France that saw the former advance on penalties.

SWISS WONDERLAND

If the entree in Copenhagen was tasty, the main course in Bucharest was worthy of a Michelin star dish. The Swiss sensed an opportunity as France started with a back three. Soon enough, they were a goal to the good. The only surprise was they didn't add to it before halftime. 1-0 Switzerland.

BENZEMA'S WORLDY

If you miss a penalty against a side like France, they will make you repent it. Soon enough, Karim Benzema scored a goal that brought back visions of the one scored by Dennis Bergkamp all those moons ago in the Premier League against Newcastle United. Man United midfielder Paul Pogba scored what will count as another goal of the tournament contender. 3-1 France.

GRANIT COMEBACK

With Granit Xhaka beginning to boss the midfield battle, Swiss fashioned more chances. They went wide and brought down the arrears before the Arsenal midfielder's defence splitting pass led to a deserved equaliser in injury time. 3-3

COMAN AGONY

France, though, weren't done even if tired Swiss legs had settled on a shoot out. Just before the end of the second period, Kingsley Coman had the chance to win it for the world champions but his close range effort hit the wood work and ricocheted wide just as the referee blew the whistle to signal a shoot out. 3-3

MBAPPE MADNESS

Out of all the players, it was the French attacker who was off radar for the entire two hours.

Having an off colour tournament, he stepped up needing to score to keep them in the shoot out. Yet, his timid effort was saved by Yann Sommer to send the Swiss to the quarterfinals.

ENGLAND VS GERMANY

KANE'S STERLING SHOW

LONDON: Raheem Sterling and Harry Kane scored second-half goals as England defeated old rivals Germany 2-0 at Wembley on Tuesday to set up a Euro 2020 quarterfinal against Sweden or Ukraine. Sterling broke the deadlock with a quarter-hour to go before Kane headed in a second on 86 minutes shortly after Thomas Müller missed a chance to equalise for the Germans as England won a knockout tie at the European Championship for just the second time. With this performance, England head into quarterfinal having not conceded a goal so far in the Euros, the only team to do so.

Prototype mask can detect Covid with RT-PCR accuracy

Such face masks essentially shrink an entire diagnostic laboratory into tiny SARS-CoV-2 sensors, which only require water to activate

RESEARCH

TINY sensors incorporated into wearable fabrics like masks and jackets could provide instant information on exposure to disease-causing pathogens such as the coronavirus, according to research published on Tuesday in the journal Nature Biotechnology.

The highly-sensitive tests that up to now have been restricted to laboratory use are integrated into smart wearables "beyond what a FitBit or Applewatch can offer", said study co-author Peter Nguyen a research scientist at the Wyss Institute at Harvard University. "The concept is similar to how our own skin works, where you automatically sense your environment with exquisite sensitivity without needing to actively participate in the details of the process itself," he said.

In the new study, scientists were able to re-create the cell parts that sense dangerous microorganisms and freeze-dry them. They are then re-activated to begin testing by adding water — like a "package of instant ramen noodles", according to Nguyen.

Such tests have previously been based on living cells, which researchers said can be too fragile and sometimes dangerous in non-medical settings. In the new study, researchers used cell-free reactions that contain the tools of a living cell without the cell itself.

Since they are not alive, the sensors can be freeze-dried and stored for months until they are ready to be activated.

The authors showed that these sensors, which use CRISPR gene editing technology, could match laboratory virus detection and be woven into wearable fabrics.

The mask provides results in 90 minutes | WYSS INSTITUTE AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Nguyen said the wearable detectors might be useful for "anyone working in an environment where they might be exposed to pathogens or toxins". Researchers developed a prototype Covid-19 testing face mask with a patch of sensors attached to a pad that collects the user's breath particles.

After the wearer has used the mask for at least 15 minutes, they pierce a small pouch on the mask and water wicks the sample into the sensor for analysis.

A strip on the mask displays the result.

Wearable warning

The researchers also developed a jacket for a liquid "exposure event", for people working in dangerous environments.

It employs the gene-editing tool CRISPR — which is used in medicine to target specific genetic material such as are found in viruses — to create sensors that light up when exposed to the target pathogen.

Fibre optic threads in the jacket carry information from tiny sensors in the fabric to a miniature detector within the garment that is the size of a small candy bar.

"In the short term, we see the wearables and especially the face masks being used in the clinic for specialised situations," he added.

But Nguyen also said that in the long run the garments could be used by regular people, especially in the case of local outbreaks for easy at-home testing.

Pacemaker-body merger

In another Nature Biotechnology study, scientists at Northwestern University developed a small, flexible cardiac pacemaker that is completely absorbed by the body once it has fulfilled its use.

Heart patients with short-term needs, such as those recovering from surgery, have typically relied on pacemakers that are only partially implanted. Power and programming has to be transmitted to the devices via tubes and wires that penetrate the skin, increasing risks of infection or wounding due to movement.

"Moreover, when pacing is no longer needed," the study notes, "removal of the implanted device carries the risk of damaging heart tissue."

The new device, which researchers tested on various animal subjects including mice and dogs, is made completely of bio-resorbable materials and can be programmed to be absorbed into the body after a specific timeframe.

In the short term, we see the wearables [with sensors] and especially the face masks being used in the clinic for specialised situations

NASA looks to stop world's river deltas from dying

Scientists from NASA and a half-dozen universities from Boston to California aim to create computer models that can be used with advanced satellite data to let countries around the world learn which parts of their dwindling deltas — which are already fragile environments — can be shored up and which are past hope

SINKING & SHRINKING

While oceans rise because of climate change, the world's river deltas — home to seafood nurseries and more than 300 million people — are sinking and shrinking

Deltas are the babies of the geological timescale. They are very young and fragile, in a delicate balance of sinking and growing

NASA Delta-X project website. In geological time, young means thousands of years

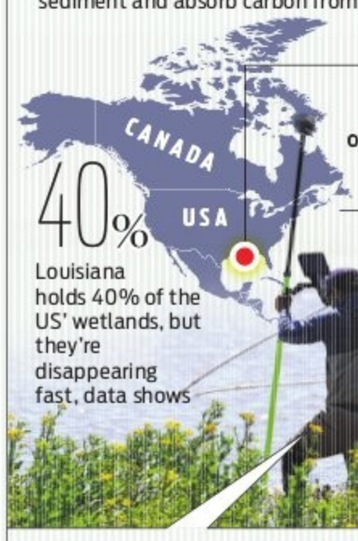
WHAT ARE DELTAS?

When rivers reach a shallow coast and deposit large amounts of sediment such as silt, gravel and clay, etc., they build up land, creating a river delta

This type of environment has rich soil and is an important source of biodiversity. River deltas even protect ocean coasts from the blunt of natural disasters such as tsunamis. All over the world, river deltas are losing land

STUDY FOCUSES ON U.S. BASINS

To figure out where to shore up dying deltas, NASA is studying water flowing in and out of Atchafalaya and Terrebonne basins in the US state of Louisiana, sediment carried by it, and plants that can slow the flow, trap sediment and absorb carbon from the air



40% Louisiana holds 40% of the US' wetlands, but they're disappearing fast, data shows

5,180 KM² of the state has been lost since the 1930s, which is about 80% of the US' wetland losses, as per the US Geological Survey

STUDY METHOD

Using two kinds of radar and a spectrometer that measures more colours than the human eye can distinguish, high-altitude NASA airplanes have been collecting information such as water height, slope, sediment, and the types and density of plants. Some measurements are as precise as a couple of centimetres

On boats and islands, scientists and students from across the US take samples and measure everything from currents to diameters of trees. Their findings will be used to calibrate the airborne instruments

Delta-X's study gets downright granular: A California Institute of Technology team that researchers how sediment moves and is deposited on Earth and other planets will now analyse the amounts of sediment in high- and low-tide water samples, breaking the particles down into about 100 sizes, the Associated Press reported

MEASURING SEDIMENT MOVEMENT

One way researchers measure how much land has been formed by sediment involves sprinkling white feldspar dust on the ground

They return to see how deeply it's buried by new sediment. They do that by injecting liquid nitrogen into hollow tubes to freeze the dirt and muck around them. When the tubes are pulled up, the frozen "popsicles" show a white ring. They measure from there to the top

Seen from 8,500 feet above, the Wax Lake delta in the Atchafalaya Basin in St. Mary Parish, Louisiana, US | AP

I've been working here 15 years, and one of the toughest parts about working in a delta is you can only touch one little piece of it at any one time and understand one little piece of it at one time. Now we have the capability of working with NASA to understand the entire delta

Robert Twilley, a professor of oceanography and coastal sciences at Louisiana State University

LAND SOMETIMES SINKS

Mining and extracting oil, gas or groundwater from the below the ground can cause land to sink. The image below shows an extreme example of such sinking, in the San Joaquin Valley of California. The dates on the pole show the land surface level of those years

3 bn Covid vax doses administered globally

DATA

WASHINGTON: More than three billion Covid-19 vaccines have been administered around the world, an AFP tally found Tuesday, as countries race to contain the virulent Delta variant that is fuelling outbreaks all over the globe.

The highly infectious strain of coronavirus has caught many nations off guard, with Russia reporting its highest daily death toll yet, Australia shutting down city after city and fears growing over major sporting events like Euro 2020 and the Olympic Games.

At least 3.9 million people have died from Covid-19, and while some wealthy countries are succeeding in bringing infections down thanks to strong vaccination drives, others where shots are not as readily available are struggling.

According to the tally, high-income countries as defined by the World Bank have administered an average of 79 doses per 100 inhabitants, with the United Arab Emirates, Bahrein and Israel taking the lead.

In low-income nations, the figure is just one shot per 100 people.

On Tuesday, foreign ministers from the Group of 20 major economies stressed the need for greater global cooperation in the face of the pandemic.

"Multilateral cooperation will be key to our collective ability to stop this global health crisis," US Secretary of State Antony Blinken told the ministers in the city of Matera.

Facebook's value crosses $1 tn after key court victory

TECHNOLOGY

A US judge on Monday dismissed the blockbuster antitrust action against Facebook filed last year by federal and state regulators, helping lift the value of the social media giant above $1 trillion for the first time.

Judge James Boasberg of the US District Court of Washington, DC dismissed the cases filed in December by the Federal Trade Commission and more than 40 states, which could have rolled back Facebook's acquisition of Instagram and the messaging platform WhatsApp.

The federal lawsuit "failed to plead enough facts to plausibly establish a necessary element... that Facebook has monopoly power in the market for personal social networking services," the judge said in a 53-page opinion, while allowing authorities the opportunity to refile the case.

In lawsuits filed in December that were consolidated in federal court, US and state officials called for the divestment of Instagram and WhatsApp, arguing that Facebook had acted to "entrench and maintain its monopoly to deny consumers the benefits of competition."

The judge issued a separate opinion dismissing the case by the states, saying attorneys general had waited too long to bring the case for the acquisition of Instagram in 2012 and WhatsApp in 2014. The judge said the FTC complaint "says almost nothing concrete on the key question of how much power Facebook actually had... it is almost as if the agency expects the court to simply nod to the conventional wisdom that Facebook is a monopolist."

The federal agency based its case on a "vague" assertion that Facebook controlled more than 60 percent of the social networking market, but the FTC "does not even allege what it is measuring."

FACT OF THE MATTER

China to pause squid fishing

CONSERVATION

China has announced a temporary ban on its fishing fleet — the world's biggest — from catching squid in parts of the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans after overfishing pushed populations to the brink of collapse. China reels in as much as 70 percent of the global squid catch, and its vessels sail as far as West Africa and Latin America to sate the growing appetite for seafood in the country. But Chinese vessels will suspend operations in major global squid spawning grounds in the southwest Atlantic near Argentina from Thursday until September 30, and parts of the Pacific from September to November, the agriculture ministry said Monday. The ban follows an international backlash against China's giant overseas fleet.

Stolen Picasso painting found

ART

Greece said it had recovered a Picasso painting personally donated by the Spanish master to the Greek people, almost a decade after it was stolen alongside two other artworks in an audacious heist at the National Gallery. Head of a Woman, gifted by Pablo Picasso to Greece in 1949, was recovered in Keratea, 45 km southeast of Athens. Police said a 49-year-old builder had confessed to stealing the artworks in 2012 and had been arrested. The man said he had initially hidden them in a home but had recently stashed them in thick vegetation at a gorge. The painting had a personal inscription by Picasso on the back -- "For the Greek people, a tribute by Picasso."

BIZARRE SCIENCE

Medieval torture or cure? A magnetic 'lockjaw' for obesity

HEALTH

WELLINGTON: New Zealand researchers have created a weight-loss device that uses magnets to clamp a patient's jaw together. They are hailing it as a new tool against obesity despite critics likening it to an instrument of medieval torture.

The "world-first" innovation involves a dentist fitting magnets and locking bolts to the patient's upper and lower molars, allowing the jaws to open only two millimetres.

Lead researcher Paul Brunton, from the University of Otago's school of health sciences, said this restricted the user to a liquid diet without limiting breathing or speech.

"It is a non-invasive, reversible, economical and attractive alternative to surgical procedures," he said. "The fact is, there are no adverse consequences with this device."

The researchers added they had "developed a world-first weight-loss device to help fight the global obesity epidemic".

In a paper published in the British Dental journal this month, they said seven women each lost an average of 6.36 kilograms (1.0 stone) during a two-week trial with the device, called the DentalSlim Diet Control.

It found the patients experienced some initial discomfort but generally found the device "tolerable".

Unlike jaw wiring, which was a popular way for restricting people to liquid diets in the 1980s, the DentalSlim has an emergency release in case the patient vomits or has a panic attack.

The release was not used by any patient during the two-week trial, although one woman admitted cheating the liquid diet by melting chocolate to get a sugary hit.

The invention generated a strong response on social media, with many users accusing the researchers of shaming fat people and questioning the ethics of the trial.

One critic called it "repulsive and dehumanising" while another said it risked entrenching unhealthy eating habits.

"Maybe instead of developing torture devices, you could do some research into how the medical profession consistently fails people based on the out-of-date and inappropriate bmi (body mass index) scale," one user posted.

The researchers note in their paper that the trial was approved by an ethics committee and carried out in accordance with international guidelines.

"The beauty of it is that once patients are fitted with the device, after two or three weeks they can have the magnets disengaged. They could then have a period with a less restricted diet and then go back into treatment," Brunton said, according to a statement.

Two comedians came together to bring out a funny video on the famous sounds of Bengaluru, which has now gone viral with over 70,000 likes

SLANG & THE CITY

SIMRAN AHUJA

SUPER GURU", "Dude I had this startup idea", "put one scene", "maga"... If you live in Bengaluru, chances are you've used these phrases in a conversation or been at the receiving end of it at the very least. An Instagram video called Famous Sounds of Bangalore captures these quintessential Bengaluru moods and moments in a short and sweet clip that has now garnered over 70,000 likes. The creators behind this – comedians Nirmal Pillai and Abishek Kumar B – put out this video as part of their sporadic series, which previously covered similar editions for Chennai and Kerala.

Pillai recalls how Kumar and he got together to collaborate on a short sketch about wedding videographers when the idea for this series came to them. Both Chennai-based, the two were standing outside Pillai's house when they heard a vegetable vendor and started mimicking the dialogue they often say. "We both enjoy comedy and improv so we spontaneously decided to shoot a video about the famous sounds of Chennai, and of course, the vendor had to be a part of it," says Pillai. Just as the two suspected, the video struck a chord with people and got 60,000 likes, which then made way for another edition on famous sounds of Kerala (with over 1,40,000 likes).

Bengaluru seemed to be the obvious choice for the next video but Pillai was hesitant, having had more lived experience of Chennai and Kerala. "I told Nirmal a video on Bengaluru would definitely work because this city is a cultural hub. There are people outside Bengaluru too who would relate to it," says Kumar, who besides being the winner of Comicstaan Tamil, is an actor as well. Surprisingly, despite having never lived in Bengaluru long-term, the two manage to nail the accent and slang of the city. Both Pillai and Kumar have family in the city, which made them frequent the city often, besides also spending some time here for their internships. "Even if you stay in Bengaluru for a week, the city and its vibe manage to stick on and the accent stays. Besides, we also did our research by reaching out to people we knew here to get the pronunciation and references right," says Kumar, who has some Tamil movies lined up.

Pillai's day job involves him being a product designer for a Bengaluru-based company, and the 23-year-old is hoping to shift here after his vaccination. "This city seems like the perfect place to transition from college to adult life," says the comedian, who also guest hosted a segment for Netflix's social media page.

Having started these videos during the lockdown last year, Pillai has found them to be a good escape in these times. Calling it his "creative lifeline", he says, "If it weren't for these short videos, I would have gone crazy. It gave me something to look forward to."

So what can fans expect next from the two? "Maybe a similar video on famous sounds of Andhra. Something to close off the South India series," says Kumar.

'If we save the tiger, we save the entire ecosystem'

Director Amit Masurkar talks about Sherni's reception, writing and researching on conservation and creating CGI animals

SHILAJIT MITRA

IT'S a few days after the release of Sherni, and I'm probing director Amit Masurkar on the thread of idealism in his movies. The question seems inevitable - after all, his last feature, Newton (2017), also dealt with that. "I think it's just coincidence," Masurkar says, more eager to point up the differences between the two films. The character of Newton, he explains, was modelled on Don Quixote, possessed of a similar bookish adventurism. By contrast, Sherni's Vidya Vincent – a female forest officer played by Vidya Balan – has her feet on the ground. "The characters in Sherni are not allegorical," Masurkar says. "Its scope is much larger and wider." Excerpts:

Sherni has been received warmly by all quarters.

It's been a good two weeks for everyone involved with the film. I'm happy that people are liking it. A lot of subject experts have been writing to us, putting up posts on social media. It was a delicate topic to portray and we were worried about doing justice to it. When people who are working in the field give you their nod, it means a lot.

Take us through the writing and researching process of the film.

Screenwriter Aastha Tiku and I were talking about doing a film on conservation. The story kept changing because it was such a vast subject. But the basic philosophy of it was that conservation is not a hero-driven process. You need the whole community in a sustained effort to preserve the ecosystem. We chose the tiger because it's a flagship species for conservation. If we save the tiger, we end up saving the entire ecosystem.

Moreover, Aastha comes from a strong research background of education, philosophy and psychology. We had a great research associate named Siddesh Kankekar who helped us. We also consulted several experts, including Dr Ramzan Virani, who is a conservationist and wildlife researcher.

Your debut film, _Sulemani Keeda_, was a comedy set in Mumbai. Since then, you have retreated to the jungles of Chhattisgarh (_Newton_) and Madhya Pradesh (_Sherni_). What prompted this artistic migration in you?

It's been an organic process, really. Between Newton and Sherni, there were several other ideas I was exploring. I don't think I am planning anything.

In _Sherni_, Vidya is told that the teak plantations ordered by the government have shut the grazers out, making them vulnerable to tiger attacks. It's an interesting detail because it shows how forest management isn't so linear.

This was something that came up during the research. The truth is, if you destroy a forest it's gone. It won't be back just by planting an equal number of trees somewhere else. You can't replace a natural forest that has been there for hundreds of years.

Whipping up old-world charm

This postcard service attempts to connect family and friends across India through handwritten recipes

SANATH PRASAD

AN inland letter, a quick note on a postcard...all of these are forgotten things in today's world of texts and emails. However, this duo – Rohini Kejriwal and Shruti Taneja – is working out a way to add a personal touch to communication. Kejriwal, a city-based writer and founder of The Alipore Post (a newsletter), has collaborated with Taneja, a Delhi-based recipe curator and founder of Navaala, a journal documenting traditional recipes, to launch a pan-India recipe postcard service.

They simply call it the Alipore Post and Navaala Recipe Postcard exchange initiative where people can share recipes with their friends or family through postcards. "Our target audience is those who want to create a sense of nostalgia by sending messages through postcard writing," says Kejriwal. The service was started 10 days ago and so far they have received over 13 delivery requests from different parts of the country. "We receive a recipe from our customers after which we hand write them and post them to the destination on their behalf. Due to the lockdown, a lot of people are not stepping out of their homes and this is one way to continue the love for food that all of us have. This is a pandemic project where we thought we could connect people through food and postcards," says Kejriwal.

They offer two versions or templates of postcards – sweet and savoury. The recipes will be categorised accordingly, stamped and then dropped off in a postbox nearby. The cost of getting one postcard written is ₹99. Customers can also buy a set of five postcards for ₹299. From a grandmother sending a chutney recipe to her granddaughter, to messages like 'eat alone in your room', the fallout of the postcard service has seen a blend of emotions. "Receiving something personalised is a universal emotion. When you cook for someone, it is to show love and care for them...It has been decades since people received handwritten recipes," says Taneja.

Although social media becomes a hindrance to such services, the founders believe traditional practices always have a space of their own. "Writing postcards is still rooted in nostalgia. WhatsApp messages tend to be forgotten or even deleted. Right now we are getting leads through social media. If the trend picks pace, we will extend this internationally as well," says Taneja.

I wish the directors had spent a night or two in man-eater jungles. No officer would ever dare move without his heavy rifle, leave alone a lady officer who walked around as if she was studying butterflies...that was so funny that every time I saw her I burst out laughing. It was truly that ridiculous. But overall I loved the movie.

Saad Bin Jung, wildlife conservationist

The movie strikes a balance between being a pro-nature and pro-development narrative. It does not try to tell you if this is right or wrong, but the sequences lead up to address the core issues surrounding the lives and livelihood of the villagers. Although the tigeress is a man-eater, she is not vilified and the film helps understand the need for co-existence

METHOD

- Mix the flour, baking soda and salt in a bowl.
- In a separate bowl, add coconut oil/ vegan butter and white sugar and whisk together. Add the lemon extract, lemon juice, lemon zest and mix well.
- Add the dry ingredients in with the wet ingredients and mix in by hand. Mix until crumbly but can form lumps when shaped.
- Preheat the oven to 180°C.
- Roll out the dough and cut out cookies with a cookie cutter.
- Place onto a parchment lined baking tray. Aim to get 20-30 pieces.
- Place into the oven to bake for 12 minutes.

FIT BIT

EKA PADA SIRSA UTTANA PRISTHASANA

(ONE FOOT BEHIND THE HEAD EXTENDED LIZARD TAIL LUNGE POSE)

In Sanskrit, 'eka' means one, 'pada' means foot, 'sirsa' means head, 'uttan' means stretch out, 'pristha' means back of the body and 'asana' means pose. If you're working on getting your legs behind your head, this one is often more accessible than attempting that while sitting or standing. Opening your hips, your back, and your hamstrings will do you well here. This pose has to be performed only after a good warm up. This asana stretches and opens the chest and shoulders. This pose must be practised under the guidance of an expert.

STEPS

- Start in Adho Mukha Svanasana (Downward Facing Dog).
- Inhale and lift right leg up. Point toes towards the ceiling and keep right knee straight.
- Exhale and bring your right foot outside your right palm. Rest your foot evenly on the ground and bend your right knee at a 90 degrees angle.
- Your right foot, shin and knee should be in a straight line; right thigh parallel to the ground.
- Your left heel will automatically point towards the ceiling. Try not to obstruct your movement.
- Inhale and walk your palms forward till your forearms reach the floor. Rest your elbows on the floor with your palms facing down.
- Keep your left knee lifted and maintain your balance.
- Hold your right ankle with your left hand and move your head in such a manner that your right ankle touches your left ear.
- Bend your left knee and hold your left ankle with your right hand. Pull your left heel close to your buttocks.
- Stay in this pose for 3 to 6 long breaths.
- To come out of this pose, release your feet and place your palms flat on the floor. Rest in Adho Mukha Svanasana.
- Repeat on the other side.

BENEFITS

- Helps reduce stress and anxiety.
- Helps open the hip flexors, hamstrings and groins.
- Strengthens the quadriceps and inner thigh muscles.
- Stretches the abdomen, chest and shoulders.
- A very good pose for your neck.
- Gently massages your internal organs.
- Very effective for your body, mind and soul.

LIMITATIONS

- Anyone suffering from sciatica, or severe knee injuries should avoid this asana.

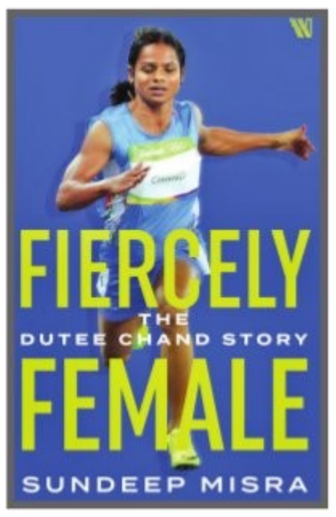
TURNING PAGES

'THIS MEANT DUTEE COULD RUN AT ANY EVENT'

The first edition of the Ekamra Sports Literature Festival in Bhubaneswar in 2018 generated a huge buzz. This was because of an important session on its first day: 'Hyperandrogenism - One Word, Many Opinions'. Odisha had seen its athlete Dutee Chand go through immense trauma after she was diagnosed with hyperandrogenism in 2014. The people of Odisha had spent much time trying to understand the implications of this condition, wondering why it meant that Dutee would not be able to run unless she submitted to hormonal treatment. By 2015, when Dutee had been allowed by CAS to compete, fans with an understanding of sport knew that science could not prove one hundred per cent that higher levels of testosterone in women led to better performances on track.

The festival organisers promised an all-star panel on the subject. Dutee Chand would be on it, and so would Santhi Soundarajan, one of the first victims of the Hyperandrogenism Regulations. Santhi had been a silver medallist at the 2006 Doha Asian Games, but was removed from the medal list after she was diagnosed with hyperandrogenism. Genderqueer equal rights activist Gopi Shankar Madurai would also be on the panel and so would Madeleine Pape, the Australian 800 metres runner who competed at the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games and against Caster Semenya at the 2009 World



Championships in Berlin. Pape had first been against Caster when she was diagnosed with hyperandrogenism, but now, as a PhD candidate in Sociology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, she is one of Caster's biggest supporters in her battle against the IAAF.

With a panel like this, the media was excited. A few local TV channels were curious about Santhi. It had been twelve years since she had made it to the front pages of newspapers. When the organisers of the literature festival got in touch with her, Santhi initially refused to travel. She said she didn't have much to say about something that had happened a long time ago. There was no point revisiting pain, she explained. The organisers persisted and finally, she agreed to come if she was accompanied by Gopi. The literature festival had wanted Gopi on the same panel in any case, to shed some light on what the Tamil Nadu government was doing for Santhi, plus zir own views, so this arrangement was perfect. (Genderqueer Gopi uses gender neutral pronouns like ze and zir instead of he or she and his or her.)

Santhi also wanted to visit Lord Jagannath's temple. 'I have never been there and want to take the Lord's blessings,' she said. Pape was worried about flights: she would have to fly halfway across the world. But she wanted to meet Dutee and Santhi and this was a great opportunity.

By now, Dutee was completely free to race. The IAAF in its April 2018 announcement of new eligibility regulations for Female Classification (Athlete with Differences of Sexual Development) had said that the Hyperandrogenism Regulations were for events from the 400 metres to the mile, including the 400 metres, the hurdle races, the 800 metres, the 1,500 metres, the one-mile races and combined events over the same distances. Effectively, this meant Dutee could run at any event. With two silvers at the Asian Games, she was the festival's top draw and had decided to speak about how the Hyperandrogenism Regulations now specifically affected South Africa's Caster Semenya, the World Athletics and Olympic champion over 800 metres and 1,500 metres.

Dutee had spoken to the Indian media in support of Caster. She said: 'I realised they (the IAAF) were targeting Semenya through their new ruling. I decided to write an email and offer her the help of my legal team. She replied, saying she would appreciate it. I gave Semenya's details to Dr Payoshni Mitra and asked her to reach out.'

Classics in Graphics

VR FEROSE

Of late, I've started re-reading some of my favourite books just to check if they still resonated with me the way they did when I first read them. And that gave me the idea of re-reading in a different format - graphic novels of classics. I first read Kurt Vonnegut's Slaughterhouse-Five two decades ago. I reread it more recently – the graphic novel version by Ryan North and Albert Monteys. Having visited Dresden as a tourist, I realized the images in the graphic format added to the original. I could imagine what Dresden looked like before and after the firebombing. Although I enjoyed reading the graphic format, the characters sometimes felt a little cartoony. Re-reading George Orwell's Animal Farm by Brazilian illustrator Odyr was more captivating, as the animals came to life.

I learnt all my Indian mythology from comics. More recently, graphic novels have come with innovative adaptations. Ramayana 3392 A.D, the brainchild of Deepak Chopra and Shekhar Kapur, is written by Shamik Dasgupta with art by Abhishek Singh. It an imaginative reinvention of the epic set in a post-apocalyptic future. Sita: Daughter Of The Earth by Saraswathi Nagpal and Manikandan is another outstanding graphic adaptation.

For many people who might balk at reading classic works of literature, graphic novels are an effective way to be introduced to classics in a visual and more digestible fashion. It is a great way for reluctant readers or those with a time crunch to access classics. However, a lot depends on the way the stories are narrated. The retelling should be as close to the original as possible without appearing to resemble a comic book. The true test of a good graphic novel of a classic is whether the graphic adaptation has a long shelf life. An unintended consequence is that a graphic novel is easier to translate into languages as it has minimal text.

Gareth Hinds is the prolific creator of critically-acclaimed graphic novels based on literary classics, including King Lear, The Merchant of Venice (which Kirkus called "the standard that all others will strive to meet" for Shakespeare adaptation), The Odyssey, Romeo and Juliet, and Macbeth (which the New York Times called "stellar" and "a remarkably faithful rendering"). However, his landmark achievement was a graphic novel of The Iliad, a complex endeavour as the epic contains myriad characters. Gareth introduced the characters by dedicating a page to the cast and assigning a colour to each god. Gareth says that he had initially targeted a readership of schoolchildren but the book has now reached all age groups.

One of the best graphic novels of a modern classic is Margaret Atwood's 1985 novel The Handmaid's Tale beautifully realised by artist Renée Nault. The novel explores themes of subjugated women in a patriarchal society and the means by which they attempt to gain independence. Other graphic novels of modern classics that I have enjoyed are Harper Lee's To Kill a Mockingbird: A Graphic Novel illustrated by Fred Fordham; Herman Melville's Moby Dick illustrated by Christophe Chaboute; Anne Frank's Diary adapted by Ari Folman and illustrated by David Polonsky; and Paulo Coelho's The Alchemist illustrated by Daniel Sampere. The challenge will be to do a graphic adaptation of the classic The Catcher in the Rye.

As Robertson Davies said, "A truly great book should be read in youth, again in maturity and once more in old age, as a fine building should be seen by morning light, at noon and by moonlight." And when it comes to classics, they should be read in different formats too!

THE TRAGEDY OF ZOOM SHOWS

Representational pic

The pandemic has structurally changed the way most businesses function. While some sectors - like online education - have thrived by promising to make children CEOs by the age of ten, most other sectors have suffered. As an art form that depends on live audiences, standup comedy as a sector has been completely butchered. The pandemic wiped out audiences, shows, and earnings of every single standup comedian in the country.

In the first few weeks after the pandemic hit us, comedy shows migrated to digital platforms like Instagram and Zoom. In the beginning, we loved the advantages in this brave new world. There was no need to wade through hours of traffic and travel. You didn't begin your journey looking dapper, only to reach the venue looking like the Scarecrow in The Wizard of Oz. There were no bars selling you a beer for the price of a wristwatch. The problem of forgetting lines and the order of jokes vanished with the use of a computer. And for someone who hates dressing up, online shows allowed me to wear a blazer on top and shorts below. Most of us comedians thought of online shows as a utopia with many advantages. But if you've read science fiction, you'll know there's no real utopia. Gradually, the many problems with online shows began to crop up.

Just like the comics themselves, the audience is required to make no effort to attend an online comedy show. Which meant people would watch a show while lying down on their bed, making us feel like we were performing for Dawood Ibrahim in Dubai. Others would be eating their food, and my punchlines would often be drowned in 'crunch-lines' coming from potato chips. We also found that people would purchase one ticket and invite their entire family to watch the show - making it seem like you mistakenly walked into Draupadi's swayamvara! We have had audience members who were watching comedy shows from their washrooms, and a joke would often be followed by the sound of a flush - a metaphor for where our careers were going. Then there was the issue of Internet connectivity and lags. I would often finish a joke and hear the laughter when I was setting the premise for my next joke!

But the biggest problem was an ideological one. For standup comedians, fundamentalists and liberals are one and the same. They are both groups that believe they're fighting some sort of noble cause for the betterment of humanity. And liberals and fundamentalists are the only two groups of people who'd interrupt a comedy show because they got offended by some jokes. And since attending an online show requires no real effort, we had to constantly face liberals interrupting our shows to tell us what we could joke about.

With the nation finally opening up, I got to host a live open mic last weekend for the first time in months. And what joy it was! To see people laughing, to hear their giggles and applause. To bring upon one comic after the other, to watch the comics tentatively fly their jokes in the air like paper planes - eager to see if they soared or crashed.

As the nation crawls back to normalcy, do visit the local standup comedy clubs in your city. When people think of standup comedy, they think of celebrities selling out packed auditoriums. But every city's standup scene is a small number of comedians trying out jokes to mostly empty rooms. Most comics straddle full-time jobs along with the terrifying prospect of making strangers laugh. If laughter really is the best medicine, we are the back-line warriors.

The makers plan to start dubbing for the film from July 10

GANESH, ahead of his birthday on July 2, took to his social media account to share that he is in no mood for celebrations. However, his fans will be getting a teaser of his film, Tribble Riding.

The Mahesh Gowda directed comedy-drama starring Ganesh features three female leads — Megha Shetty, Rachana Inder, and Aditi Prabhudeva. The team had completed the talkie portions and a song before lockdown, and are now left with the shooting for 3 more tracks.

Meanwhile, the post-production works of the film have begun in parallel, and the director plans to begin the dubbing process from July 10. "I plan to start with dubbing and move on to re-recording. We will finalise the location for the rest of the songs, and plan the shoot in the meantime," says Mahesh Gowda. This will be the first release of Ganesh this year. Apart from Tribble Riding, the actor also has Gaalipata 2, directed by Yogaraj Bhat and Suni's Sakath.

Sharan and Nishvika return to the sets of Guru Shishyaru

A SHARADHAA

Post lockdown, film shootings have slowly started to resume in Sandalwood, and team Guru Shishyaru will be among the first few projects to resume shooting. The lead actor, Sharan, and heroine Nishvika Naidu will be participating in this schedule that will commence from today in Bengaluru.

Director Jadeshaa K Hampi is collaborating with the lead actors for a comical sports-drama. The shooting which began in January went on till April and the team last shot a few crucial portions in Mandya, just before the lockdown. While Sharan plays a PT master, who has a rift with his students, Nishvika plays a rural girl for the first time. Director Tharun Kishore Sudhir, the creative head for Guru Shishyaru informed us that they have ensured that every technician and artiste on the sets are vaccinated. "We have planned a week-long schedule, which will take place in the outskirts of Bengaluru and a couple of portions in Kanteerava Studio. With this we will be completing the shoot for the first half of Guru Shishyaru," says Tharun. Meanwhile, the team is waiting for further relaxation from the government, as they are required to shoot at different locations in Karnataka.

The sports-drama directed by Jadeshaa K Hampi resumes shooting from today

Guru Shishyaru is bankrolled by Sharan's production house, Laddu Cinemas. Apart from being the creative head, Tharun is also venturing into production and will be co-producing the film under the banner Tharun Kishore Kreatiivez. Guru Shishyaru also starring senior actor Dattanna will have Ajaneesh B Loknath scoring music and Sudhakar Shetty handling the camerawork. Apart from this film, Sharan also has Avatar Purusha, for which he has completed the shoot. The film directed by Suni bankrolled by Pushkar Films will be out in 2 parts.

APURVA'S FIRST STINT WITH AN ANTHOLOGY

The actor is part of Pentagon and will feature as a college girl in the comedy thriller segment

CE FEATURES

Director and producer Guru Deshpande is bringing together five directors for the Kannada anthology Pentagon and it has actor Apurva playing an prominent role in the segment helmed by director Chandramohan. The maker has revealed the look in the film through a character poster released on the occasion of her birthday.

Apurva plays the role of a college girl in the comedy thriller that also stars Pramod Shetty as the antagonist and debutants Kishore and Chinmay in crucial roles. The actor, who got her screen name as Apurva post-Crazy Star Ravichandran's directorial, will be making her anthology debut with Pentagon. She believes that the anthology will be a new experience to the audience. "I play a bubbly college girl. The story revolves around her love and the consequences she faces because of it."

The actor, who has been part of a handful of commercial flicks, states that the space a female actor gets in anthologies is nothing less than commercial films. "A commercial film usually doesn't allow the heroine to have the screen space from start to end. But, in the case of a 30-minute-long anthology segment, the space an actor gets is equal to the screen space in a three-hour-long commercial film. Moreover, these subjects give actors the scope to perform," she says. The other stories from Pentagon made under banner G Cinemas are directed by Raghu Shivamogga, Akash Srivatsa, Kiran, and Guru Deshpande.

While the shoot of four stories has been completed, the episode directed by Guru Desh Pande will resume shortly.

Apurva, who was last seen in Ajai Rao starrer, Krishna Talkies, is also part of Purushottama, in which she is paired opposite Bodybuilder Ravi, who is making his debut as a hero.

'Much easier to go to Thailand and shoot with real tigers'

The film gets satirical in its depiction of the forest department and bureaucracy. Were they on board with all of this?

We have actually portrayed the forest department in a positive light. We have highlighted the hard work many of them do, from daily wagers to guards to RFOs. Even the characters who have a bit of grey in them are not bad. For instance, Neeraj Kabi's character, Nangia, has done a lot of good work. We had the full support of the Madhya Pradesh forest department. They let us shoot in their offices and bungalows (Vidya's house). A lot of forest officers have acted in the film as well.

I found the casting of Sharat Saxena as the hunter quite intriguing.

Sharat lives a couple of buildings away from me. All of us have grown up watching him on the big screen. He has this amazing personality. So when the hunter's character came up, he was the first choice. In fact, right after we approached Vidya, we approached Sharat for the role. He connected with it because he is from Madhya Pradesh. He is familiar with the jungles and that world.

You created the animals, including the tigress and her cubs, in VFX. It's stunning work.

It would have been much easier and cheaper to go to Thailand and shoot with real tigers. They drug and exploit those animals and that's not something we were comfortable with. For the film, the tigers and the dead buffalo were done by a VFX company called Cirqus. They are a Hyderabad-based company whose founders worked on Life of Pi (2012). And the bear was done by another company called FutureWorks. In India, a lot of international VFX work happens but you have to give the artists time. We had a decent VFX budget because the animals were characters in the film. It was non-negotiable.

You mean for vacation or shooting?

Both?

Shooting I don't know yet. As for vacation, I've never been to Assam. It will be an interesting place to visit.
